BEVERLY HILLS (UPI) — Flame-haired actress Susan Hayward, one of the screen's great beauties, died Friday of a brain cancer at age 56.

Miss Hayward reached the peak of her career as a Hollywood leading lady when she won an Academy Award in 1958 for her agonizing portrayal of murderess Barbara Graham in "I Want To Live."

Her grief-stricken son,

Timothy, who announced her death at her home here, declined to give a cause of death, but she succumbed to a malignant brain tumor, according to her physician, Dr. Lee Siegel.

"She knew what she had, and she knew she was going to die," Siegel said.

The physician said she suffered a seizure brought on by the tumor and died quietly without pain.

The tumor was discovered two years ago during the Christmas holidays, according to Siegel. Since that time she had been in and out of hospitals here and in Georgia, where she once made her home.

It was not determined to be malignant, however, until two months ago in an Atlanta hospital where doctors performed a biopsy. Since that time she had been undergoing radiation treatment, Siegel said.

Son Tim was tight-lipped in his announcement about his mother's death, saying only:

"She died at 2:25 p.m. today at home. I will make no other statement."

Brooklyn-born Miss Hayward became a magazine cover girl and then a movie star who was in more than 50 motion pictures. She was beset by tragedy most of her life.

She divorced her first husband, actor Jess Barker, in 1953, and was widowed in 1966 with the death of her second husband, attorney Eaton Chalkley.

In 1955, at the height of her career, the actress attempted suicide by taking an overdose of sleeping pills.

A year later she made headlines following a brawl with starlet Jill Jar-myn in the bedroom of actor Donald Barry. Police found Miss Hayward wearing the actor's pajamas.

Illness forced her to withdraw from a starring role in "Mame" in Las Vegas in 1969.

Born Edythe Marrener on June 30, 1918, Miss Hayward spent a year as a photographer's model in New York before going to Panel completes $29 billion tax bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee approved a $29.2-billion tax-cut bill Friday that goes far beyond the one-shot antirecession reduction requested by President Ford.

The package, which is expected to go to the full Senate for its approval starting on Tuesday, includes $21.2 billion in 1974-75 tax cuts for individuals and $8 billion for business.

Unlike the House, which passed a $19.9 billion package for 1974-75, the Senate panel approved a series of tax reductions that are designed to be a permanent part of the tax code.

The committee, on two close votes, agreed to separate the issue of repealing the oil depletion allowance from the tax-cut bill.

But the depletion question is expected to cause a heated fight on the Senate floor, as oil-state senators seek to protect the $2.5-billion-a-year tax break for the petroleum industry.

The $29.2 billion total of the committee bill is nearly double the $16 billion Ford requested. The committee's suggested tax cut for individuals is $5 billion above the House figure; the total for business is $4.3 billion higher.

The committee accepted the House method of providing a quick rebate to all taxpayers in an effort to stimulate the economy. The panel approved $8.1 billion in rebates to individuals, with each taxpayer assured a minimum of $100.

The maximum rebate would be $200.

The Treasury expects to mail the rebate checks in May.

Before the committee voted 16 to 2 to approve the bill, with Republican Sens. Carl T. Curtis of Nebraska and Paul Fannin of Arizona voting no, it approved amendments to:

—Provide an extra $40 across-the-board reduction for individuals on 1975 taxes.

31 L.B. police cars grounded

By GLENN LEIBOWITZ and KRIS SHERMAN Staff Writers

Half the Long Beach Police Department's 61-car fleet of black-and-white patrol vehicles has been ordered out of service because tests show they are unsafe, city officials said Friday.

The 31 cars—1973 and 1974 Dodge Coronets—were taken out of service between Wednesday afternoon and Friday night after test runs made at the Los Angeles Police Department's traffic course on Terminal Island showed they were prone to brake failure or loss of control when the brakes were applied, officials added.

A police spokesman said, meanwhile, that the city was being patrolled "as usual" but that about half of the 18 to 32 cars on the street at any given time are unmarked. They are driven by uniformed patrolmen but not equipped with red lights and sirens.

The unmarked vehicles do, however, have radios, and most of the patrolmen driving them have been assigned to nonemergency calls only, the spokesman added.

The black-and-white cars in patrol service are some of the 30 American Motors Corp. Matadors the department has in addition to the 31 Dodges.

The unmarked cars were pressed into service because the 30 Matadors are not enough to cover the city on a 24-hour basis, the spokesman added.

Long Beach Police Officers Association President Harry Duple said the black-and-white Dodges were ordered off the streets Wednesday afternoon after failing the safety tests.

Duple said the cars were tested after several officers complained of losing control of their black-and-whites when the brakes were applied. Sources within the department said the testing may have stemmed from a fatal traffic accident involving a patrol car last Christmas Eve.

Cambodian strategy

Envoy tries lobbying for aid

By GIL BAILEY From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — The Cambodian ambassador in an unusual diplomatic move personally lobbied freshmen members of the House Friday in an effort to gain votes for further military and economic aid for his country.

In several cases Ambassador Um Sim called congressmen, including at least five California freshmen Democrats, to ask for appointments to plead his case.

The unusual diplomatic lobbying was not altogether successful.

"While I have nothing but feelings of compassion and sorrow for the plight of the Cambodian people, I continue to believe that additional U.S. military assistance will not alleviate the suffering, nor will it help solve the complex political problems faced by that country," said Rep. Mark Hannaford, D-Calif., following a 70-minute session with the ambassador.

Hannaford said the ambassador appeared worried about the fate of his nation.

The ambassador confirmed that he has been attempting to meet with freshmen congressmen.

"I am just doing my job," the ambassador said. "I talk to them and present my case and then they make their decision on how they are going to vote."

While Um Sim did succeed Friday in meeting with Hannaford he failed in efforts to meet with such freshmen as Reps. Norman Minnetta, Jim Lloyd and John Krebs, all California Democrats.

The government said Friday U.S. businesses made the sharpest reduction in unsold goods in 14 years in a "healthy sign for the troubled economy," but the Federal Reserve said production declined for the fifth month in a row.

Wall Street was cheered by the report that inventories have been reduced, and prices soared on the New York Stock Exchange. The Dow Jones industrial average rose 10.49 points to 773.47 in heavy trading.

The 3 per cent drop in production in February was less severe than the record decline of 3.6 per cent in January and the 3.1 per cent drop in December. The Federal Reserve said cutbacks in factory output were "widespread among consumer goods, equipment, construction products and industrial materials."

In a related report, the Commerce Department said inventories of unsold goods declined in January after nearly four years of growth, meaning unsold goods were stockpiled faster than they were sold. It was the first substantial sign that an economic recovery could begin this summer.

"The change from accumulation to liquidation of inventories... is a healthy sign for the troubled economy," Assistant Commerce Secretary James L. Pate said.

"That is magnificent" news for the economy, said Irwin Kellner, economist for Manufacturers Hanover Bank in New York.

U.S. resumes Cambodian airlift

Heavy fighting was reported in Cambodia and South Vietnam Friday, with American supply planes resuming flights into the besieged Cambodian capital of Phnom Penh following a half-day suspension.

The flights of vital rice, ammunition and fuel from Saigon and Thailand were forced to shut down temporarily Thursday when a rebel rocket hit an ammunition depot at Pachentong Airport and set off a two-hour series of secondary explosions.

Foreign diplomatic missions stepped up preparations for evacuation of their nationals from the capital.

Australia announced it would close its embassy in a few days but retain diplomatic links with President Lon Nol's government.

In Bangkok, an RAF Hercules and a French twin-engine Transall turboprop stood by to fly to Phnom Penh and evacuate Australian, French, German, Swiss and Swedish nationals.

In South Vietnam's strategic Central Highlands, the government fought to recapture the overrun provincial capital of Ban Me Thuot in a battle that has assumed massive proportions.

The Saigon Command said North Vietnam has already committed 10,000 men in the attack.

The Viet Cong mission in Saigon said the city, stormed by North Vietnamese troops in a surprise attack Monday, was firmly in Communist hands.

Writer hints he knows of Patty Hearst

By HENRY WEINSTEIN New York Times Service

SAN FRANCISCO — Jack Scott, a writer and radical critic of the nation's organized sports system, who reportedly is being sought for questioning about the whereabouts of Patricia Hearst, said in a telephone interview Friday that his lawyer was discussing his situation with the federal authorities.

Scott, whose alleged connection with Miss Hearst became known Thursday, implied that he knew something of Miss Hearst's activities since she was listed as fugitive last June. He said:

"It's not by accident that no one has been harmed since last June, either the individuals in question or any unrelated parties. You can get medals for killing people, but if you save lives some people will call you a criminal."

The 32-year-old Scott called a New York Times reporter with whom he spoke three weeks ago at a rally of the United Farm Workers here.

In a brief conversation, Scott apparently was alluding to a gun battle that occurred last May 17, when six members of the self-styled Symbionese Liberation Army, a group of left-wing radicals, were killed in Los Angeles. A month later, Miss Hearst sent a tape recording to a Los Angeles radio station in which she expressed her love for one of the SLA members slain in the shootout and fire that followed.

Scott's apparent role in the case was disclosed by Bill Walton, a professional basketball player, who is a friend of Scott and his wife, Mickie.

Through his lawyer,

Walton said agents of the FBI questioned him Wednesday about the Scotts and their possible connection with Miss Hearst. The Scotts had recently lived with Walton, a rookie center with the Portland Trail Blazers, at his home in West Linn, Ore., a suburb of Portland.

Scott, a graduate of Syracuse University, and a former athletic director at Oberlin College, wrote "The Athletic Revolution," in which he criticized the sports establishment for being authoritarian, dehumanizing and overly concerned with winning.

"Bill was cooperative but he couldn't tell me anything because he doesn't know anything," the lawyer, Charles Garry, said. "He (Walton) and the Scotts are friends, but he hasn't seen them for several weeks and he knows nothing of the SLA or Patricia Hearst."

Officials of the FBI and the Justice Department declined to comment on reports that Scott was wanted for questioning about hiding the fugitive 21-year-old Miss Hearst, who announced that she had joined the radical group after she had apparently been kidnapped here in February, 1974. Her father, Randolph A. Hearst, who is publisher of the San Francisco Chronicle, fulfilled a series of ransom demands shortly after the kidnapping, but Miss Hearst subsequently denounced her family.

Scott said his father, who lives in Las Vegas, had been summoned to appear next Thursday before a federal grand jury in San Francisco that is investigating the Hearst kidnapping and its aftermath.

U.S. refuses to bail out rail line

Combined News Services

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Railway Association late Friday night refused to reverse its decision denying the Rock Island Railroad a $30-million loan which the 122-year-old railroad said was essential to stay in business. In denying the loan, which railroad officials said they needed for working capital in 1975, the USRA said it found no evidence that the loan could be adequately secured or repaid, nor could it be shown that a smaller loan would prevent the railroad from becoming insolvent. The action, taken after a four-hour emergency meeting, affirmed earlier speculation that the Ford administration was ready to let the faltering 5,700-mile Midwestern line go out of business. The railroad's board of directors has scheduled a meeting in Chicago for Monday morning, but officials refused to speculate on how imminent bankruptcy is for the railroad, which has operated at a loss for the past six years.

16-state school-bias probe

WASHINGTON — A federal judge Friday ordered the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to investigate 125 more school districts in 16 states for possible violations of federal civil rights laws. U.S. District Judge John Pratt, in his third major ruling in the four-year-old suit brought by the NAACP Legal Defense Fund, also gave the government a maximum of seven months to resolve future school desegregation cases or begin action to cut off federal funds to the schools. Pratt said that since his Feb. 16, 1973, order listing 85 Southern districts having one or more schools with at least a 20 per cent disproportion in their racial makeup, another 125 such districts have been identified. The 125 districts are in Arkansas, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, Missouri, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia and West Virginia.

Air fare revision

WASHINGTON — Proposing a major new concept in airline ticket pricing, Allegheny Airlines said Friday it will seek permission soon to set up flat-rate fares providing virtually unlimited travel for one, two or three weeks at a time. Tickets sold under the proposed "Liberty Fare" system would be good for travel anywhere within the area served by Allegheny, which stretches from Montreal to Minneapolis-St. Paul and from Memphis to Norfolk, Va. A spokesman said the proposal could be compared in many respects to the Eurail Pass, which allows unlimited rail travel in Europe for a flat fee. The new fare would provide seven days of travel for $129, 14 days for $149 and 21 days for $179. Children between the ages of 2 and 11 years would receive a 50 per cent discount from the regular air fare when accompanied by Liberty Fare holders.

TWA pay pact accepted

WASHINGTON — A contract calling for $21.7 million in back pay and boosting the hourly wages of Trans World Airlines mechanics and ramp servicemen by $1 has been overwhelmingly approved by the union members, the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers said Friday. IAM said the 12,000 employees voted more than three to one to accept the 26-month contract. The contract will raise a top-rated mechanic's pay to $7.77 per hour on May 1, up from the current $6.60 per hour.

REA pares paychecks

NEW YORK — REA Express Inc., a major private surface and air delivery service, cut the paychecks of 11,000 employees by 10 per cent Friday as part of a bankruptcy reorganization plan. An REA spokesman said the cuts were a "one-week thing" and that "we hope normal salaries will be paid to employees next Friday." Since the company filed for reorganization under federal bankruptcy laws in February, 800 management and nonunion employees have taken pay cuts of up to 20 per cent.

Strip-mine change killed

WASHINGTON — The House, brushing aside protests by environmentalists, rejected efforts on Friday to lodge federal regulation of coal strip mining under the Environmental Protection Agency. It rejected two amendments that would have transferred the authority to EPA from the Interior Department. Rep. John A. Dingell, D-Mich., author of one of the amendments, accused Interior of "favoritism toward energy interests."

Jeering students mob Echeverria

MEXICO CITY — Thousands of students shouted down President Luis Echeverria at Mexico's National University Friday and sent him fleeing from the campus before a hail of bottles, bricks and rocks. Bodyguards held their hands over Echeverria's head as a howling mob pursued him to his car. A rock smashed the windshield when the limousine sped away with one door still open. Gunfire and rioting broke out minutes later. The office of the president—whom activists blame for the bloody suppression of a 1968 student rally—said Friday night that Echeverria suffered a slight cut on the head. Four persons were hurt in the eruption after he left — one with a gunshot wound in the leg. The president is a focus of student anger because he was interior minister, in charge of security, when Mexican army troops opened fire on a student rally Oct. 2, 1968, at the Tlatelolco housing complex in downtown Mexico City. At least 50 persons were killed and scores were wounded.

Spinola seeking asylum

RIO DE JANEIRO — Former Portuguese President Gen. Antonio de Spínola, implicated in an abortive conservative uprising in Lisbon early this week, arrived in Brazil from Spain Friday with his wife and 15 sympathizers. But Spínola was not allowed to disembark from the plane, and officials said he would go on to Buenos Aires, possibly to make a plea for asylum. Spínola, a moderate army general, inspired last April's coup against Portugal's 50-year-old right-wing dictatorship and established a new center-left coalition government. But he became increasingly at odds with leftist elements of the new government and has been named as leader of Tuesday's unsuccessful coup attempt against the new government.

Ex-Gov. Hall guilty in bribe-extortion

Associated Press

A federal court jury Friday convicted former Oklahoma Gov. David Hall and Dallas financier W. W. "Doc" Taylor of all counts in an interstate bribery-extortion scheme.

Hall, 44, Taylor and Taylor's agent, R. Kevin Mooney of Fort Worth, were indicted three days after Hall, a Democrat, left office Jan. 13. Mooney pleaded guilty to a conspiracy charge and testified for the state.

The silver-haired former governor sat stonefaced in the federal courthouse in Oklahoma City as Judge Fred Daugherty read the verdict, reached after three days of deliberations.

"This completes round one," Hall said moments later outside the federal building. "I have directed my counsel to file a motion for a new trial and for appeal."

"I'm not guilty," he said. "I expected a verdict of not guilty on all counts or a hung jury. I'm very much disappointed."

Hall was found guilty of one count of extortion, and he and Taylor on three counts of conspiring to bribe.

Sentences will be set later. Hall faces a maximum penalty of up to 35 years in prison and a $40,000 fine. The counts against Taylor carry a maximum of up to 15 years and $30,000.

Hall was charged with attempting to extort $50,000 from Taylor to be used as a bribe to influence investment of $10 million in state funds with Taylor's firm, Guaranteed Investments Co. of Dallas. No money changed hands.

Example

Feminist Gloria Steinem visited Gov. Ella Grasso, the nation's only woman governor, Friday in Hartford, Conn., and said that by electing a woman Connecticut has set an example for the rest of the nation to follow.

Ms. Steinem, who met with Connecticut Secretary of the State Gloria Schaffer for a luncheon, said she differs with Mrs. Grasso on certain issues such as abortion but did not discuss them with the governor.

The governor described her first meeting with Ms. Steinem as cordial and was interested in hearing her views on the problems of the women's movement. Mrs. Grasso said she found the feminist leader more moderate than she expected and described her as a "very gracious guest."

LaRue

Frederick C. LaRue, the first of 11 men charged in the Watergate cover-up, was sentenced Friday in Washington to serve six months in prison. He was the last of the convicted conspirators to be sentenced.

U.S. District Judge John Sirica imposed a 1-to-3-year term, but specified that only six months of it must be spent in prison, with unsupervised probation to follow. With normal time off for good behavior, LaRue may serve less than five months.

LaRue, 46, pleaded guilty nearly 21 months ago to conspiring to obstruct justice but had remained free while the courts disposed of the cases that followed.

Since then, the charges against two men were dropped, one was acquitted, three pleaded guilty and four were convicted after trial. Nine of the Watergate conspirators is in prison now.

Composer

James Haven Gillespie, composer of such popular tunes as "Santa Claus is Coming to Town," "That Lucky Old Sun," and "Breezing Along With the Breeze," died early Friday of cancer in Las Vegas. He was 87.

A native of Covington, Ky., Gillespie was born Feb. 6, 1888. He left high school to enter the printing trade and became a journeyman printer, working on the New York Times and other newspapers.

But he soon switched to writing songs for films, the theater and radio, collaborating with many other song writers including Victor Young, Richard Whiting and Rudy Vallee.

Discipline

The Disciplinary Board of the Washington State Bar Association recommended to the State Supreme Court on Friday that former presidential aide John D. Ehrlichman be disbarred.

State Bar President Kenneth P. Short said in Seattle that the recommendation was based on a stipulation by Ehrlichman agreeing to immediate disbarment.

Ehrlichman, top White House domestic adviser to former President Richard M. Nixon, was convicted New Year's Day in the Watergate coverup trial. Before entering the government he was a lawyer in Seattle.

Emigrant

Mikhail S. Agursky, son of a founder of the American Communist Party, he has received permission to emigrate from the Soviet Union to Israel.

Agursky, 42, told Western correspondents in Moscow he was summoned by the head of OVIR, the Soviet visa agency, and told that he would be given an exit visa next week. He said he planned to leave for Israel in about six weeks with his wife and two children.

Agursky, 42, said he first applied for permission to emigrate three years ago, but was refused. A former computer expert, he has been working recently as a translator.

V.I. Lenin, founder of the Soviet state, sent Agursky's father, Samuel, to the U.S. to help found the American Communist party.

Newcomer

The third Barry M. Goldwater arrived Friday, the son of Rep. and Mrs. Barry M. Goldwater Jr., R-Calif.

The child, who is the grandson of Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz., was named Barry III and dubbed by his father as "the youngest Republican in the Goldwater family." He is the congressman's first child and was born in a District of Columbia hospital.

Boy flees N.Y. slum, finds home in Omaha

Penniless and carrying all his possessions in a small duffle bag, 14-year-old Mike Romano arrived in Omaha, Neb., by bus about 5 a.m. Friday, then marched to the police station.

Mike, who is small for his age, walked in and presented the desk sergeant with a note from his grandmother in Brooklyn, N.Y. The note read:

"To whom it may concern,
"I'm Michael's grandmother, and am sending Michael to Boys Town because I don't want him to be here in this awful crime city."

"I can't take care of him anymore. I spent my last penny to buy his ticket to come there. I hope that he will be O.K."

"I would appreciate very much if you help him." The letter, signed Mary Vaughn, contained a telephone number. Police called Mrs. Vaughn and found the note was indeed legitimate.

The Rev. Robert Hupp, Boys Town director, heard of Mike's arrival on an early morning radio newscast and about 4½ hours later Mike checked in as a Boys Town resident.

Father Hupp picked up Mike at the police station and, in a battery of friendly questions, the two got acquainted.

"Yes, I came out to stay with you guys. I can handle any kind of work," Mike told Father Hupp.

Mike said he is a ninth-grader and it was his decision to seek a new home at Boys Town.

"People are nice out here. Word gets around, you know. It's a small world," Mike said. "It's better than being in the slums of New York City."

Mike's grandmother, who lives in the Park Slope section of Brooklyn, said the boy's parents left him with her months ago and that she could no longer take care of him.

Fund raiser

Rabbi Baruch Korff said Friday he plans fund-raising luncheons in Cincinnati and Dallas to raise money to pay former President Richard Nixon's legal fees.

In a telephone interview with newsmen in Los Angeles from his New England home, Korff said the Nixon Justice Fund must raise $30,000 to pay fees due this month. The fund has already paid $120,000 to Nixon's attorneys.

4 charged in credit card spending spree

Two Canadian and two Australian citizens were arrested at the Disneyland Hotel in Anaheim Friday after police found merchandise valued at $5,000 and 19 stolen credit cards in their rooms, officers said.

Police said a Bank of America spokesman estimated that the loss on one of the cards issued by the bank amounted to $60,000.

Officers said they went to the hotel after a clerk became suspicious of two cards the four allegedly used to register. Investigators said the clerk told them the cards' numbers appeared on a list of credit cards reported as stolen.

When officers went to the rooms shortly after midnight Thursday they found a large quantity of luggage, clothing, shoes and after shave lotion, investigators said. They added that the 19 credit cards, all reported as stolen, were also recovered in the hotel rooms.

Arrested and charged with credit card forgery were Robert George Trivett, 29; Malcolm John McPhee, 28; Robert Daniel Taylor, 31; and Gloria Joan Budrow, 29; all of Vancouver, British Columbia.

Police said the woman also was charged with possession of dangerous drugs, but officers gave no details of the charges.

Trivett and McPhee are Australian citizens, and Taylor and Ms. Budrow are Canadian citizens, investigators said.

All four were being held in lieu of $30,000 bail each.

The allegedly stolen cards included BankAmericard, Master Charge, American Express and major oil company credit cards, officers said.

Anaheim investigators said the Royal Canadian Mounted Police told them the four suspects also may be involved in a large Vancouver auto theft ring.

Hahn will call judge for you

Our L.A. Bureau

If anyone is ticketed within the next week for not having a nitrogen-oxide control device on his or her car, County Supervisor Kenneth Hahn said Friday, he will call the judge on the motorist's behalf.

Hahn's pledge came along with his appeal to residents to send their assemblymen postcards urging repeal of the law which requires the smog devices on 1966-70 cars in the South Coast Air Basin.

Hahn urged citizens to immediately mail cards in support of Assemblyman William Campbell, R-Hacienda Heights, who will attempt a showdown vote of the full Assembly Thursday to get a repeal bill moved out of committee.

A bill to repeal the law was pushed through the Senate by its author, Sen. Nate Holden, D-Los Angeles. But on an 8-7 vote the Assembly Transportation Committee refused to send it to the floor.

Hahn said it would take 41 votes on the Assembly floor to have the bill repealed.

Meanwhile he urged car owners to "hang tight" despite the fact that the California Highway Patrol has started to issue citations to those without the devices.

2,000 students, police clash at USC frat row

Associated Press

Police arrested 21 persons, including one girl and two male students, for investigation of battery on a police officer.

The incident began shortly before midnight Thursday when two police officers stopped to investigate an automobile parked in the middle of a fraternity row street. About 100 students had surrounded the car.

The driver of the car refused an order to move the vehicle and the officers started to take him into custody. Police said one student tossed a beer can at one officer and another student began swinging at the second.

Police said other students in the crowd joined in the melee, which attracted about 2,000 onlookers from surrounding fraternity and sorority houses.

The houses customarily schedule a "social night" on Thursdays which attracts large crowds.

The officers radioed for assistance and about 55 police from the Southwest Division of the Los Angeles Police Department were sent to disperse the crowd. A helicopter hovered overhead because police said youths began hurling rocks and beer bottles from rooftops at the officers.

45,719 illegal aliens arrested in three weeks

United Press International

A total of 45,719 illegal aliens were arrested in a recent three-week period in 10 southwestern states in a coordinated crackdown on immigration, particularly along the Mexican border, it was disclosed Friday.

Regional immigration commissioner L. W. Gilman said in Los Angeles the arrests were made between Feb. 10 and March 3 in California, Nevada, Arizona, New Mexico, Texas, Oklahoma, Utah, Colorado, Wyoming and Hawaii.

Gilman predicted the total number of illegal aliens to be apprehended for the current fiscal year in the southwest area will be around 730,000.

Dig you really must?

Three or four months ago, the Long Beach Gas Department replaced some gas lines on my block. The crew dug up the street, did the repair work and then refilled the holes with asphalt. On Feb. 14, a private contractor under the supervision of a city inspector dug up the same holes and redid the job. On Feb. 17, a holiday at double-time pay, another crew dug up and refilled the same holes for the third time. Is this graft or utter inefficiency? C.L., Long Beach.

The three jobs you witnessed actually were different phases of the same repair project, according to Edward Wright, manager of the Long Beach Gas Department. On Dec. 3 and 5, the gas lines leading to two houses on your block were replaced and the gas department crew filled the holes with a temporary asphalt coating. "Our temporary resurfacing work always looks pretty good and it appears the job is finished at that point, but we hold off on the permanent resurfacing for a couple of months to allow the dirt to settle and compact," Wright said. On Feb. 14, a private contractor hired by the city removed the temporary asphalt and filled the holes with course rock. On Feb. 17, a holiday which the contractor didn't observe, the crew completed the permanent resurfacing job. Because two gas line replacement jobs were involved, the final resurfacing project took two days to complete, but the crew was not paid double time for working on Feb. 17, Wright said.

Out of cite

It is my understanding that clergymen are exempt from traffic tickets and have other privileges the layman doesn't have including special discounts given by business firms. Is this true? I.W., Long Beach.

Clergymen are not exempt from traffic tickets although in isolated instances a police officer may choose to give a clergyman a warning rather than a citation, according to Donald Lindblom, executive director of the Long Beach Area Council of Churches. Lindblom noted that a clergyman's driver's license does not identify him as a minister or priest and the only way an officer would know is if the clergyman was wearing a clerical collar. A spokesman for the Long Beach Police Department said there is no written or unwritten policy exempting clergymen from traffic tickets. Lindblom said there was a period in American culture when clergymen were given discounts by businesses in the local community. This practice originated in rural areas where the pastor was not paid very much and discounts were given to supplement his income. This tradition carried over to urban areas but as the clergy became better paid the practice decreased.

Mini-mikes

I saw a television program about a year ago showing different types of bugging devices, such as small microphones concealed in candy bars and lipstick tubes. Where can a person purchase such things? M.W., Lakewood.

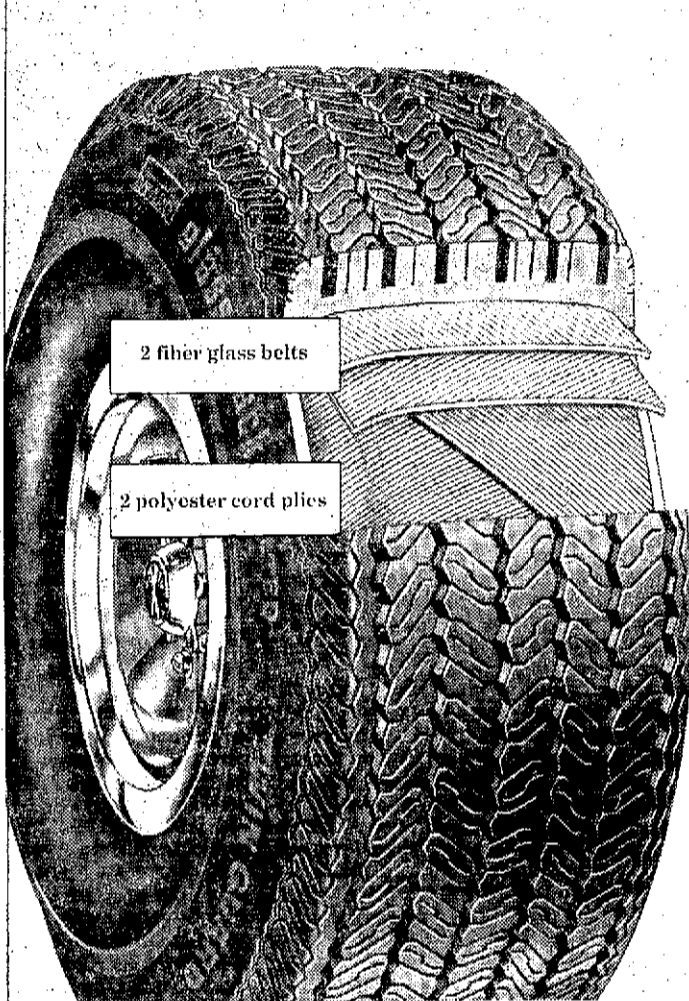

Such equipment apparently is available, but because it is illegal to sell, possess or use such devices, finding them can be difficult. Electronic supply outlets that carry eavesdropping equipment generally don't advertise these products because the company owners could be arrested for selling them. Lately, the U.S. Justice Department has been cracking down on such firms, but doesn't have the manpower to investigate all of them. A spokesman for one detective agency said most private investigators are unwilling to tell an individual where to buy bugging devices because they could be arrested for conspiring with someone to commit a felony.

Matter of interest

In February 1974, we signed a purchase agreement with Northern Mobile Home Sales in Kingman, Ariz. for a trailer and paid $2,000 as a down payment. At that time, we had our house up for sale and thought we could take possession of the mobile home in about 90 days. However, the sale of our house fell through and then in October, we were informed by our doctor that my husband, who is a kidney dialysis patient, had developed complications and must remain here for treatment. We informed the salesman about this, but he said we couldn't get our down payment back because the company had altered the coach to fit our specifications, but these alterations should add to the value of the coach. The firm sent us a letter stating that we owed them more than $2,000 in interest. We really need the money and feel this is terribly unfair to us. Can Action Line help? A.F., Carson.

No. Robert Wright, owner of Northern Mobile Home Sales, refuses to return your down payment and maintains that he lost more money on the deal than you did because he held the coach for nine months waiting for you to take possession of it. He said during that time he had to pay the interest on the loan he used to finance the coach and finally had to sell it at a loss to pay off the loan. He said he is not going to hold you liable for any additional money even though your purchase agreement stipulated that you would pay the interest on Wright's loan if you didn't take possession in 90 days.

McCloskey warns of S. Viet collapse

By GIL BAILEY
From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON—South Vietnam will probably fall within three years if United States aid is reduced and it is "highly possible" that the country will fall anyway, even if United States aid is continued, Rep. Paul McCloskey, R-Calif., said Friday in a detailed Southeast Asia military evaluation report.

McCloskey, a former Marine officer, who visited South Vietnam and Cambodia as part of a congressional delegation earlier this month, predicted the fall of South Vietnam despite the fact that the southern forces outnumber their foes three to one and the south is using nine times as much ammunition as the north.

"The aggressiveness, will and sense of purpose of the north, its leaders and its soldiers, presently far exceed the aggressiveness, will and sense of purpose of the bulk of their South Vietnamese counterparts," McCloskey concluded.

"It is thus my conclusion that the tough, rigidly disciplined Communist cadres of the North Vietnamese and Khmer Rouge will eventually prevail over the type of semi-democratic governments we have tried to support in South Vietnam and Cambodia. Our whole Southeast Asian venture is thus likely to result in a Communist domination of Vietnam, as well as Laos and Cambodia, within the relatively near future," he said.

"Their young men travel 600 miles to die in the south. No comparable sense of purpose has yet been found in the South Vietnamese people although many of their combat units fight with superb skill, and it is probable that 95 per cent of the South Vietnamese people prefer not to live under a Communist government," he added.

McCloskey, using figures provided by U.S. State Department and South Vietnamese sources, said that since 1973 the United States has spent a total of $5.57 billion in military and economic aid in South Vietnam while Russia and China have spent a $3.91 billion for North Vietnam.

"U.S. military aid to South Vietnam in the past three years has been over twice that the North Vietnamese have received from the Soviets and China combined. Soviet and Chinese economic aid to North Vietnam has been steadily increasing while U.S. aid to South Vietnam has been decreasing," he said.

"The U.S. ambassador to South Vietnam told us that he felt South Vietnam needed $4.3 billion military assistance and $2.2 billion economic assistance over the next three years in order to become self-sufficient by 1979. In effect, he asks almost two and a half times the military assistance in 1976 that Congress voted in 1975, and exactly twice the economic assistance," McCloskey explained.

The California Republican, who challenged former President Nixon in the 1972 primaries over the Vietnam War issue, pointed out that North Vietnamese casualties have been much higher than those of the south.

He said, according to Defense Department estimates, the north lost 988,125 dead and the south 239,851 over the past 10 years. In addition, the United States lost 46,328, including 207 dead during 1974.

At present McCloskey said the South Vietnamese are killing the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong at a rate of two to one for their own casualties.

In addition he said the South Vietnamese forces outnumber the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong three to one and fire nine times as much ammunition as their enemies.

McCloskey cited two problems with the South Vietnamese forces:

"South Vietnamese forces have assumed a defensive posture with respect to their populated areas, and have allowed the north to choose the location of the battleground," he said.

"Also about 20 per cent of the South Vietnamese ground forces desert each year," he added.

McCloskey noted that at the time of the January 1973 cease-fire South Vietnam controlled 75 to 80 per cent of the land area and 92 per cent of the population. South Vietnam then expanded its control to 94 per cent population.

"The North Vietnamese, however, reacted by stepping up a counter effort in 1974. Captured documents reveal that they felt they had been naive and idealistic in hoping for complicity with the Paris accords by the South Vietnamese and the United States," McCloskey said.

The North then reduced the South Vietnamese control to 87 per cent of the population and is preparing for a 1976 offensive.

McCloskey said the South Vietnamese are falling back.

"Should this deterioration continue, the rice harvest upon which South Vietnam's economy depends, could be materially diminished," he said.

"As the military pressures tighten, it seems clear that the South Vietnamese could lose all or most of at least six provinces in the South and all or most of the northern half of the country. It is my estimate therefore, that within three years there could arise a situation very similar to threat of Cambodia today with perhaps 80 per cent of the land and one-third of the population under Communist control, and a Communist takeover almost inevitable," McCloskey said.

He was critical of the information President Ford has received on Vietnam.

"The advice the President is getting from his career Defense Department and State Department people may very well be distorted because of the fact that so many of them have spent so many years attempting to build the new nation of South Vietnam," McCloskey said.

He praised the Central Intelligence Agency's estimates.

Kissinger 'still hoping' Israelis 'chilly' to Sadat ideas

By WILBUR G. LANDREY
UPI Foreign Editor

JERUSALEM — An Israeli spokesman gave a chilly first reaction Friday to Egypt's "concrete ideas" for another pull-back by Israeli troops in the occupied Sinai but Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger still hoped to keep the negotiations going with a new Israeli reply.

Kissinger reported to Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and the negotiators on the "concrete ideas" he brought to Israel Friday from President Anwar Sadat of Egypt.

The initial reaction by a senior Israeli official not present at the meeting was that the Sadat ideas were "insufficient" and even unsatisfactory" and not enough to bring about the major withdrawal from the Sinai Desert that Egypt is demanding.

The reaction provoked a controversy of its own. A more senior American official said that Kissinger himself had heard no criticism yet of the ideas he brought from Sadat and that there was no Israeli-American split.

He agreed that the negotiations were only beginning, however, and that while some progress had been made they still could fail.

The senior American official repeated that he believed Kissinger would have to take back something new from Israel to Sadat Monday to keep the negotiations going.

Aboard Kissinger's plane earlier, the official indicated he believed the time had come for the Israeli cabinet to consider whether to make an official offer to withdraw from the Abu Rodeis oil fields and two strategic Sinai passes. The cabinet is meeting Sunday.

It was a day of some confusion after Kissinger arrived here at the end of his second shuttle between Egypt and Israel.

From Ben Gurion Airport near Tel Aviv, Kissinger drove directly to Jerusalem and met Rabin and the Israeli negotiating team for 2½ hours to outline Sadat's ideas.

Kissinger said the atmosphere of the meeting was "constructive and comradely."

He said there was some progress but it was "premature to predict agreement," adding: "I plan to stay in the area until it is known whether or not there will be agreement."

Less than an hour later, the Israeli spokesman, who was not present at the meeting, briefed reporters.

"A few new elements were brought up today," he said. "From first sight, we think definitely in certain areas the response looks insufficient or even unsatisfactory as far as our position is concerned."

In different ways, he repeated that several times, stressing, however, that the negotiations were only beginning and in a few areas there was something concrete. The Israeli cabinet would decide on Sunday, he said, what to do next.

He agreed with a questioner that it was a fair assumption that Egypt would have to do more before Israel could make the withdrawal Egypt wants — from the oil fields and Mitla and Gidi passes.

"Egypt probably will have to do more in order to create a framework that will be adequate for negotiations," the spokesman said.

MIT to train Iranian nuclear power engineers

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — The Massachusetts Institute of Technology has agreed to train nuclear power engineers for Iran in a $1.4 million, three-year special program, it was announced Friday.

As many as 54 Iranian students will be trained in the program which is aimed at helping Iran establish a nuclear power segment in its electric power industry.

Dean Alfred H. Keil of the MIT School of Engineering said the program would be funded entirely by the Atomic Energy Organization of Iran. Only students who meet MIT's graduate student standards would be admitted, he said.

MIT officials, in considering the Iranian government request to set up the program, said they were satisfied the MIT training would not contribute to any unannounced or covert Iranian plan to use its nuclear power industry to develop nuclear weapons.

Keil noted that Iran is a signatory of the 1970 nuclear non-proliferation treaty which pledges that the country will not develop nuclear weapons.

Under that treaty spent fuel from Iranian reactors will be processed under international supervision to insure that plutonium generated by the reactors is not diverted to bomb-making, Keil said.

Iran already has purchased several nuclear reactors from France and West Germany and plans to buy more from the U.S. Plutonium, a key element in an explosive nuclear device, is a residual of burned-out nuclear fuel.

Keil stressed that even if Iran did decide to build atomic explosives, the kind of engineers trained at MIT would not be the ones needed for processing plutonium.

"Plutonium separation plants are designed and operated by metallurgists, by chemists and by chemical engineers — not by nuclear reactor engineers," Keil said.

MIT officials say the special program is to help Iran build and operate a nuclear power industry that will sustain industrial development after the nation's oil reserves are exhausted, which Iran estimates will happen in 30 years.

In addition to paying full-cost graduate tuition of $10,000 per year per student, the Atomic Energy Organization of Iran will pay all costs for adding space to the MIT nuclear engineering department.

Senators want 5 presidents' authorizations

Panel seeks White House intelligence held by Mardian

By NICHOLAS M. HORROCK
New York Times Service
WASHINGTON — The Senate Select Committee on Intelligence has asked President Ford for records of virtually every White House authorization of foreign and domestic intelligence activities over the last three decades.

The requested material covers the terms of five presidents and undoubtedly represents the most sweeping congressional request for secret intelligence ever made.

Several members of the committee said they privately view the request as a test of Ford's willingness to cooperate with the Senate investigation into federal intelligence agencies.

The request, set out in an addendum to a letter delivered to the White House Wednesday, was made public Friday by the White House with the permission of Sen. Frank Church, chairman of the committee. The Idaho Democrat had made public the first item of the request, a call for the 30-page report furnished to Ford by William E. Colby, director of Central Intelligence, during a press conference Wednesday. But the more sweeping items were not disclosed until Friday.

In his letter accompanying the request, Church said the items were needed "to fully determine the legal basis for the activities of the United States intelligence agencies." He said the request had been tendered with the "unanimous approval of the committee."

The committee divided its request into three areas but spokesmen declined to comment on the meaning of any portion of it. A White House spokesman said the request has been turned over to Philip Buchen, counsel to the President, for his review.

The committee wants: "All executive orders, national security decision memoranda or intelligence directives, and other White House directives pertaining to the charter, structure or guidelines for any overt or covert foreign or domestic intelligence agencies or activities."

There is no time period on this section and it is presumed the committee wants data from 1946 or 1947 until the present time.

The committee also asked "all executive orders, National Security Council memoranda and directives, and other White House instructions pertaining to the structure, functions or organization of intelligence policy organizations within the office of the President, including the Forty Committee and the Washington Special Action Group (and their predecessor organizations, E.G., The Operations Coordinating Board, Special Group, 54-12 Group, 303 Committee, etc.)

In this request, the committee is delving into what clearly has been the very core of secrecy in the United States government. From 1948 on, the White House has maintained a shrouded group of policy makers who have passed on every major aspect of intelligence activity.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford Friday named Deputy Assistant Atty. Gen. Kevin T. Maroney to head the Justice Department's internal security operations, succeeding Robert T. Mardian, who was convicted on charges of helping to cover up the Watergate scandal.

Maroney, who has served in the Justice Department since 1946 and has held his current post since 1969, was named chairman of the Interdepartmental Committee on Internal Security at the department.

Mardian resigned prior to his conviction in the Watergate cover-up trial, where he was a codefendant with former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and former top White House aides H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman.

Jackson said exploiting Vesco

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The chief federal drug enforcement officer accused Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., Friday of exploiting the name of fugitive financier Robert L. Vesco to get headlines for his presidential campaign.

Jackson, an announced contender for the 1976 Democratic presidential nomination, heads the Senate Permanent Investigations subcommittee which last Monday criticized the Drug Enforcement Administration's failure to link Vesco with a 1973 drug smuggling operation.

"I realize that any attempt to connect the name of financier Robert Vesco to an international drug investigation could make news," said John J. Bartels Jr., the DEA administrator. But he said the subcommittee had investigated for 18 months and had found no connection.

A subcommittee spokesman said Friday Bartels' charges would not deter the panel from broadening its investigation of the DEA.

Howard J. Feldman, subcommittee chief counsel, said the subcommittee plans to begin a new round of hearings soon after the Easter Recess.

He said the subcommittee, far from limiting its attention to the Vesco case, plans a broad inquiry into the DEA's ability to control the flow of illegal drugs into the United States.

"There are a lot of other cases we are looking at — the integrity of the inspection service, their operations in the field and their international operations," Feldman said.

Vesco fled to Costa Rica after the Securities and Exchange Commission accused him of stock fraud. He later contributed $250,000 to President Richard M. Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign, apparently in an effort to get the case dropped.

Former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and former Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans were found innocent of charges in New York that they tried to suppress the SEC investigation of Vesco.

The Jackson subcommittee became interested in the case when Frank Peroff, a DEA informant, claimed the DEA had sabotaged his efforts to prove Vesco would put up $300,000 to finance narcotics smuggling from Europe.

Bartels told UPI that the DEA did not follow through with Peroff's plans because it had sufficient evidence to prove Peroff had made up the story and that Vesco did not have any underworld drug connections.

'Top 10' FBI list turns 25

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The FBI saluted the 25th anniversary of its Ten Most Wanted list Friday with a blizzard of statistics on past desperadoes and a nostalgic review of the foibles that finished them.

One fugitive, the bureau recalled, just couldn't quit singing in bars, and many were undone by such favored tattoos as "Remember Pearl Harbor" and "In Memory of Mother."

James Robert Ringrose was 7,016 miles from the scene of his New York City crime — the long-distance record — when he was arrested in Osaka, Japan, on March 29, 1967. The average fugitive fled only 960 miles.

AND 1969 was the vintage year for most-wanted arrests: Eleven from the list were captured that year.

The silver anniversary caught the Ten Most Wanted List in a period of slackening public interest and diminishing returns: Only nine names were on it, because of a recent arrest, and FBI officials said publicity generated by the list had led to only one capture in the past five years.

But in its heyday the list paid off like gang busters. Officials said its distribution by newspaper, broadcast and wanted poster led to 101 of the 306 Most Wanted arrests since 1950.

The bureau issued the first Top Ten list on March 14, 1950, having borrowed the idea from news services which started it up informally as a feature.

The list at first was dominated by bank robbers. In the late 1960s, it began to include New Left radicals accused of destructive violence.

Morton pleads for offshore oil vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton appealed to Congress on Friday not to retard administration plans to step up the leasing of offshore oil and gas rights.

Morton told a joint session of the Senate Interior and Commerce Committees that delays caused by enactment of several pieces of pending legislation would jeopardize the administration's energy self-sufficiency plan.

One of the bills before the committees would allow coastal governors to hold up leasing for as long as three years. Another would require the federal government to conduct its own exploration program before selling drilling rights to the oil companies.

The measures were introduced after the administration announced plans to triple its rate of leasing and sell 10 million acres of offshore oil and gas rights during the next year.

More than three million acres would be leased in the Middle Atlantic, a proposal opposed by coastal governors for environmental and economic reasons. The leasing would be the first time the area is opened to drilling.

Morton said the public interest is safeguarded by existing law regulating offshore development and it would be unwise to grant governors an outright veto power over leasing. He said the power could be used politically.

The secretary said it would cost "many billions of dollars" for the government to undertake its own exploration program, as well as cause a considerable delay in exploiting offshore resources. Exploration is now done by the oil companies that buy the leases.

Morton said the offshore development program may require congressional action only if the administration decides to give coastal states some of the revenue. The states now receive no part of the revenue from oil taken from federal waters more than three miles offshore.

A revenue sharing plan was opposed by Morton last year when it passed the Senate, but the secretary has since indicated he now favors some type of aid to the states to compensate for the onshore impact of drilling.

He said President Ford is "anxious" for the department to place revenue sharing proposals before him for action. But Morton gave no indication of how much money the department is considering giving the state, or when a proposal may be forthcoming.

Illegal shoes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Treasury Department said Friday it has determined that imported work shoes from Romania are being sold in the United States at less than fair value in violation of U.S. anti-dumping laws.

14,000 Pacers recalled by AMC

DETROIT (UPI) — Just two weeks after it put its new small Pacer on sale, American Motors Corp. said Friday it will recall nearly 14,000 of its hottest selling models because of a possible fuel leak in the engine compartment.

An AMC spokesman said eight leaks have already been found, six on engineering test cars. There have been no injuries, property damage or fires as a result of the condition.

The 13,676 Pacers being recalled were built between early January and Feb. 28, the day the car went on sale. Through Friday, AMC has built 19,000 Pacers, a small, but wide, car with interior space that rivals many mid-sized models.

The defect involves a retainer clip which was improperly installed. This could result in the flexible fuel line being improperly positioned at the fuel pump, possibly allowing it to rub against an engine cross member.

AMC said it will notify owners of the affected vehicles and dealers who still may have them in stock. Corrections will be made at no cost to owners, AMC said.

Nation's traffic deaths declining

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's highway traffic chief said Friday that a dramatic decline in auto deaths last year proves the 55-mile-per-hour speed limit saves lives as well as gasoline.

Dr. James P. Gregory, head of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, told a Senate commerce subcommittee that last year's highway death toll of 45,534 was about 9,450 below the 1973 figure.

"This is the lowest toll since 1963," Gregory said. He said the traffic fatality rate per 100 million miles has declined from 5.7 in 1966 to 4.20 in 1973 and an estimated 3.56 in 1974.

"With the new permanent national 55 mph speed limit, we look forward to a continuation of lowered traffic fatalities as the states intensify their speed limit enforcement and implement increasingly effective highway safety programs," Gregory said.

Gas sales in Cal. hit 'old' rate

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Californians have resumed driving at the pre-energy-crisis rate, the state Board of Equalization said Friday.

The department said it based its conclusion on gasoline distribution figures for January which showed distribution was up 6.7 per cent or 51 million gallons from January 1974.

The department said January marked the second straight month that gallonage was greater than for the corresponding month in 1974. Prior to December, it said, every month in 1974 reflected a decline from the same month in 1973.

Gasoline distributed to retail outlets in January was down 6.9 per cent or 60 million gallons from the previous month reflecting the customary December-to-January decline, the department said. It said the decline is apparently the result of the wintertime decrease in driving.

The gasoline distribution figures are for taxable sales by distributors to retail outlets and other distributors. The figures are reported to the board by gas distributors.

Oil, gas output down despite drilling flurry

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. oil and natural gas production declined last year even though the energy crisis prompted a speedup in drilling, a government energy official said Friday.

Eric Zausner, acting deputy administrator of the Federal Energy Administration, told a House Commerce subcommittee that U.S. crude oil production averaged 8.8 million barrels a day in 1974, a 4.5 per cent decline from the preceding year. He said natural gas production was off about 3 per cent.

Zausner said the decline occurred even though there was a 19.6 per cent increase in the number of wells drilled.

The drop occurred, he said, because the decline in yields from old wells was greater than the production from new wells.

Future production trends depend heavily on the level of world prices and are hard to predict, Zausner said.

Antenna askew on Mariner 10

PASADENA (UPI) — Scientists struggled Friday to communicate with the "sickly" Mariner 10 space probe, limping on perfect course for its record third sweep of the planet Mercury this Sunday but with its antenna pointing the wrong way.

Mission officials at Jet Propulsion Laboratory, working through a huge antenna at Canberra, Australia, tried to get the tiny space probe "locked in" with the star Canopus. Without the fix, Mariner will not be able to train its antenna on earth and send back television pictures and other information during the fly-by.

"IT'S LIKE riding a merry-go-round and knowing there's a gold ring right there but not being able to reach it," said Dr. Norman Ness, of the Goddard Space Flight Center.

Mariner, launched Nov. 3, 1973, was scheduled to swoop down to within 192 miles of Mercury's dark northern hemisphere in its encounter Sunday at 3:40 p.m. The probe was to click off some 300 television pictures, and relay information on Mercury's magnetic field, discovered during an earlier fly-by.

"We thought we had Mariner locked in early Friday, but it was not Canopus," said Dr. James Dunne, project manager. "The major problem is that each time Mariner responds to a command to look for the star, it uses up valuable attitude control gas, which has nearly been expended."

MARINER 10, which gave man his closest look at the planet Venus a year ago, flew on to Mercury, the sun's closest neighbor, and made two passes of the planet at 176-day intervals.

The tiny probe, weighing 1,100 pounds, will have traversed about 950 million miles by the time it makes its Sunday rendezvous. Mariner then will be nearly 98 million miles from Earth.

Mariner, crippled during its record flight by various problems, including malfunction of the radio signaling system, startled the scientific community on its first fly-by of Mercury last March 29 when it discovered a weak magnetic field.

"It was a surprise to everyone," said Ness. "Everyone before thought Mercury was like the Earth's moon and had no magnetic field."

NESS explained that it had been believed that only large planets which rotate rapidly, such as Earth, Jupiter and possibly Saturn, generate enough energy to produce a magnetic field.

A magnetic field had not been expected of Mercury because of its small size and slow rotation.

Heart disease, cancer still top killers; suicides increase

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Heart disease and cancer still are the leading killers in industrialized countries, a World Health Organization study shows. Suicides also are taking their toll, especially in Hungary.

Statistics for the 1969-1971 period, the latest available, show that causes of death vary greatly among the 27 countries surveyed.

A resident of Scotland or Sweden, for example, is more than twice as likely to succumb to heart disease as someone living in Spain or Poland.

There were no explanations offered for the varying percentages.

Heart disease was listed by all countries surveyed as the No. 1 cause of death.

But the death rate of 407.8 per 100,000 population in Scotland and 407.6 in Sweden compared with a rate of 198 in Spain and 192.6 in Poland.

The highest death rates from malignant tumors per 100,000 population were reported by Austria, with 258.4, Scotland, with 244, England and Wales with 239.3 and West Germany with 236.7.

Italy, with 184.0 per 100,000 population, and the U.S. with 160.0, were among the lower brackets, and Bulgaria, with 136.5, and Romania, with 122.9, were at the bottom of the list.

The figures show Hungary remains a country with a top suicide rate. In 1971, it stood at 36 per 100,000.

Denmark, where the rate increased from 20.8 to 24.8, and Czechoslovakia, with a rate of 24.1, were other countries where suicides accounted for many deaths.

They compared with listed rates of 11.1 in the United States, 8.3 in Holland, and 8.1 in Norway.

In several countries, especially predominantly Roman Catholic ones, suicide did not appear under the most frequent causes of death.

Imported monkey-pet ban proposed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Declaring monkeys are a public health threat, the government Friday proposed to ban their import for sale as pets.

Present import regulations permit pet store monkeys to be sold within days of their jungle capture, the Center for Disease Control said.

Like humans, monkeys are susceptible to and transmit such diseases as hepatitis, tuberculosis, monkey B virus infections, shigellosis, salmonellosis, yellow fever, rabies and malaria, the agency said.

Without specifying how many, the agency reported some human deaths and long-term disabilities have resulted from infections reportedly transmitted by monkeys.

"A significant segment of the general public could be exposed to such hazards merely by visiting retail stores offering nonhuman primates (monkeys) for sale as pets," said the proposal published in the Federal Register.

Because the diseases are numerous and reliable screening procedures often are not available, it is impossible to develop an adequate testing program for imported monkeys that would reasonably protect humans, the CDC said.

The proposed import ban would apply only to those animals imported for sale as pets. About half the up to 100,000 monkeys brought into this country annually are used for scientific purposes, the other half are offered for sale as pets or placed on exhibit.

Several states already have taken similar steps, the document said. They include California, which has implemented a quarantine plan for monkeys entering the state.

Wild horses protected

SUSANVILLE (AP) — About 3,300 wild horses in Lassen County are protected by an emergency 90-day ordinance adopted by county supervisors.

The board acted Thursday after the recent federal court ruling that the federal Wild Horses and Burros Act is unconstitutional. The interim action makes it illegal to chase, capture or kill the animals without a special permit.

teen-age children four years ago.

"I realize this is an unusual request, but my reasons are very valid to me," Schlopy said. "I want to get enough money to pay off all my debts and to buy a used house trailer to live in."

ACTOR JIM MITCHUM AT COURT

Jim Mitchum due back in court

Jim Mitchum, actor and son of film star Robert Mitchum, will appear in Long Beach Superior Court next week to testify for the second time in a civil trial arising from a 1972 freeway accident.

The 34-year-old Mitchum, who first took the stand Thursday in the court of Judge Ernest L. Kelly, is plaintiff in a suit against General Motors Corp.

He filed the suit in January 1973, alleging he and two passengers in his pickup truck were injured in an accident on the Katella Avenue on-ramp to the southbound 605 Freeway.

Mitchum alleged that his truck was subject to recall at the time of the accident because of possibly faulty springs, and that one spring was defective.

While driving on the ramp, he alleged, the truck's left front spring malfunctioned, causing the truck to leap a barrier and tumble down a 100-foot embankment, where it landed upside down in a culvert with gasoline leaking into the cab on its three occupants.

Mitchum alleged he received minor injuries while the two passengers were more seriously hurt.

Woman, 22, charged with abandoning daughter, 3

United Press International

Misdemeanor charges were filed Friday against a 22-year-old woman who allegedly left her 3-year-old daughter with a man in a downtown hotel and never returned to pick her up.

Nora Sue Garbow was arrested at the hotel Wednesday and was booked on suspicion of child abandonment.

The complaint filed against her Friday by the district attorney's office charged her with one count each of endangering a child, contributing to the delinquency of a minor and abandonment.

When she was arrested, she told officers she had left her daughter, Tina, with Ralph Francia, 40, last Saturday. But Francia said she left the girl with him Feb. 19, asking him to care for the child for two hours. He said she never returned to reclaim the youngster.

Arraignment for the woman was set for Monday.

From Our National Bureau
WASHINGTON—The Federal Insurance Administration has withdrawn a controversial flood control map for Hawaiian Gardens, Rep. Mark Hannaford, D-Lakewood, said Friday.

Hannaford called the map an "injustice" to Hawaiian Gardens because it threatened to block building projects there.

The California Democrat set up meetings both in California and in Washington when Hawaiian Gardens protested the maps being used.

"In those meetings it became clear to me that the rate-study maps from which strict flood control regulations were drawn are incorrect and that Hawaiian Gardens is being unfairly penalized for the error," he said.

The maps were drawn from a study completed in 1971, according to Hannaford, while later information should have changed the results. The maps show where floods, including a "100-year flood," one statistically expected every 100 years, can be expected.

"A new study will be forthcoming, taking into account all flood control improvements in Hawaiian Gardens. In the meantime Hawaiian Gardens still is in the flood insurance program and although flood insurance still is available to home owners, it is not required," Hannaford said.

Triangle slayer gets jail, probation

A 31-year-old Long Beach man, convicted of involuntary manslaughter in the triangle slaying of another man, Friday was sentenced to six months in county jail and a probationary period involving marital and psychological counseling.

Danny Edward Scott, convicted last August for the year-old killing of 27-year-old Thomas Leroy Long, was sentenced by Long Beach Superior Court Judge Ernest L. Kelly.

The judge granted the defendant credit for time already served in jail and in prison in the case—nearly four months—and so reduced the time Scott can expect to spend in jail to a little over two months.

At the sentencing hearing, defense attorney Charles Gangloff argued his client already had served sufficient jail time for a crime touched off by Scott's finding another man in his estranged wife's bedroom.

Scott reconciled with his wife after the incident.

Prosecutor Allen Field argued the judge should base his sentencing on a probation report which suggested Scott be sent to state prison.

The victim, Long, was stabbed in the heart with a Bowie knife after Scott chased him from the home, at 2223 E. Eighth St., and into the street.

Gangloff argued during the trial that the stabbing was unintentional, caused by a sheath slipping from the knife blade.

Scott's probation is to last for five years, the judge specified; if at the Bus driver cleared in shooting

SANTA MONICA (UPI)—A Superior Court jury Friday acquitted a bus driver accused of shooting to death a passenger who refused the driver's order to stay off his bus.

The panel of eight women and four men returned the verdict of acquittal for Donald R. Monson, 40, Sunland, after four days of deliberations.

Monson, a driver for the Santa Monica Municipal Bus Lines, was arrested last Dec. 17 in the shooting death of George C. Jacobs, 45, Los Angeles.

Police said Monson had stopped his bus at a corner, and a passenger, trying to get off the bus, somehow got into an altercation with Jacobs, who was trying to board the bus.

The driver and Jacobs argued, then both men carried the dispute to the sidewalk where Monson drew a gun and shot Jacobs once in the chest, police said.

Couple's trial set in stolen property case

Harry and Dorothy Shubin, the Long Beach cafe owner and his wife charged with 12 counts each of receiving stolen property, Friday were ordered to appear in court for the tentative start of their trial April 29.

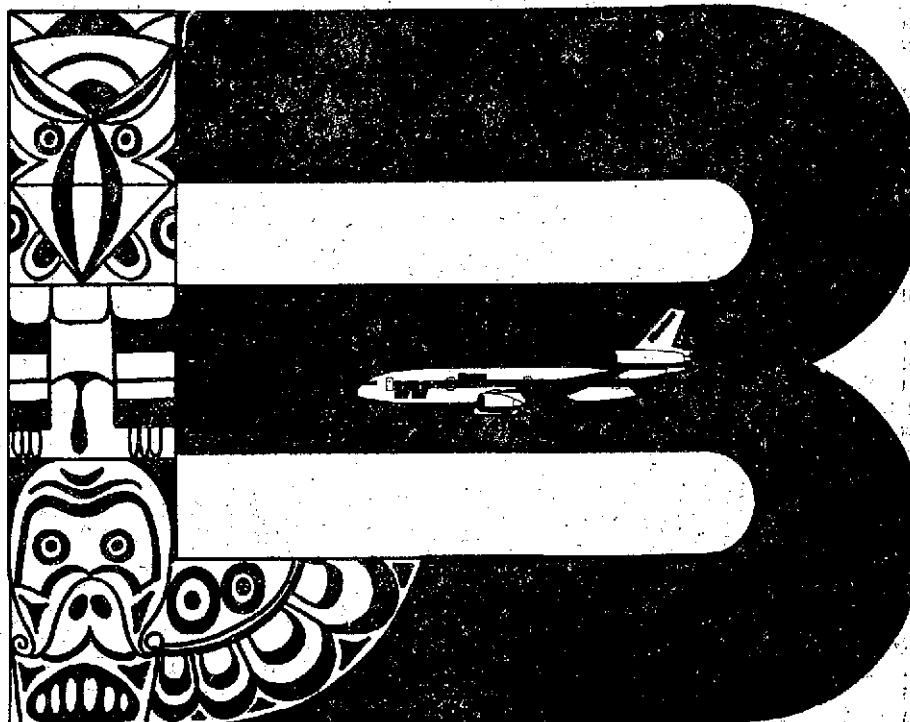

The couple, of 3900 Country Club Drive, entered formal pleas of innocent to all charges in an appearance before Long Beach Superior Court Judge Elsworth M. Beam.

They have been at liberty on bail since they surrendered to police in the case last Dec. 6.

Police allege they discovered stolen goods ranging from tools to valuable coins during searches of the Shubin residence and businesses.

Pupils urge courses in meditation

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Courses in transcendental meditation should be offered at all California high schools, the state Board of Education was told Friday.

In a resolution presented Friday, the California Student Advisory Board on Education — 70 high school students from throughout the state — said:

"It has been demonstrated by scientists that the Science of Creative Intelligence and its practical aspect, transcendental meditation, develop the basic ability to learn by systematically expanding the intelligence, receptivity and creativity of the student."

The state board took the 1975 proposals from the advisory board under advisement as it concluded a two-day meeting.

The resolution noted transcendental meditation courses have been offered in six high schools and 15 adult schools in the state.

It also said: "School officials have noted a lessening of student unrest and an improvement in grades and student-parent-teacher relationships among students who practice it."

"Transcendental meditation offers a positive alternative to drug abuse and students indicate that it shows promise of being the most effective drug prevention program being presented today."

"Physiological experiments provide evidence that through the regular practice (15 to 20 minutes twice a day) thinking becomes more orderly and the main causes of hypertension, anxiety, high blood pressure and other psychosomatic illnesses are removed."

The resolution calls for the state to sponsor pilot programs toward the goal of "realizing the educational potential of every student."

Other proposals submitted Friday included abolishing corporal punishment in schools because students "will learn to accept violence as a solution to their problems" and a revision of the teacher tenure system.

The resolution said 848 or 80.4 per cent of the school districts in California permit corporal punishment. "We believe corporal punishment is not an effective deterrent to misbehavior because it increases defiance and decreases cooperation and communication."

"The tenure system limits the administration's power to eliminate teachers who have not maintained quality instruction," that resolution stated. "there is a lack of significant interest and initiative on the part of the teachers because they have irrevocable job security."

State sued over car-lease policy

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Two San Francisco attorneys filed suit in a Sacramento court Friday to end the state practice of leasing cars for California's legislators.

The suit by attorneys Gary J. Near and Theodore W. Phillips was filed in Sacramento County Superior Court two days after Assemblyman Ken Meade, D-Berkeley, acknowledged that he had allowed his estranged wife to take his state-leased Chevrolet to Kansas.

Near and Phillips called the state's leasing policy "a waste of public funds (that) constitutes additional compensation, not authorized by law, to members of the Legislature."

The suit lists Patricia Gillette, Phillips' secretary, as the plaintiff.

It names Controller Kenneth Cory and Treasurer Jesse Unruh as defendants and asks that the court enjoin expenditure of the lease funds.

Near said that the suit was not filed because of Meade's action. He said he and Phillips had been thinking about the suit for two years and had been "spurred on" by recent newspaper editorials.

"Ken Meade is no more irresponsible than any other member of the Legislature," he said.

Both legislative houses provide their members with state-leased cars for business use. The Assembly pays 90 per cent of the lease cost up to $225 a month. Each member pays 10 per cent or more depending on the lease price.

The Senate pays 100 per cent of the lease up to $220 a month.

The Legislature also picks up the gasoline bill for its members through state gasoline credit cards for "business" driving.

Asked about the leasing program, Senate President pro tem James Mills said he favored dropping it and per diem benefits and boosting legislative salaries.

"The responsibility of a legislator is substantially more than that of a Superior Court judge," he said. "But legislators have always received a fraction of what the judges get."

Currently lawmakers receive a yearly salary of $21,120 plus $30 for each day they are in session. A Superior Court judge makes $40,322 a year.

Brown Sr. pension increased $8,000

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Former Gov. Edmund Brown Sr. doesn't have to worry about inflation eating up his state pension — he got an automatic $8,000 increase in his retirement checks this year, officials say.

Brown — father of the current chief executive — is the recipient of one of the fattest pension checks this year from the controversial but lucrative Legislators' Retirement System.

He was receiving checks for $2,249 a month last year for his eight years as governor and terms as state attorney general, according to records on file with the state controller.

But the check, funded mostly by taxpayers' dollars, was fattened to $2,918.87 a month starting March 1 — for an annual pension of $35,016 — with the automatic cost-of-living increase built into the system, officials say.

Former Gov. Ronald Reagan was not listed on the March 1 tally of state checks by the controller.

The former Republican chief executive is eligible for a pension of $19,640 a year. The Public Employees Retirement System, which administers the lawmakers' pensions, refused to release any information about Reagan's stipend.

The annual report of the system Friday listed a total of 126 former lawmakers or constitutional officers who received $325,000 in benefits during 1973-74.

ANOTHER on the March 1 controller's list was former legislator, controller and U.S. Sen. Thomas Kuchel, who received a $2,086 monthly check.

Brown speaks bluntly to Regents

'UC administrators paid too much'

BERKELEY (UPI) — Gov. Brown bluntly told the University of California regents Friday that they are paying university administrators — including the president — much too much money.

Brown, attending the regents' meeting as a member, disclosed he voted for the recent appointment of Provost David Saxon to be the new president, but he said he voted against Saxon's $59,000 salary.

He noted that president is allowed use of a mansion in addition to his salary and "to me that's excessive in a time of economic hardship and does not set a good example."

Brown's salary is $49,100. He has talked the Legislature out of raising it and that of other top state officers.

In addition to money, he said, certain state and university jobs offer "opportunity, both intellectual and psychic," and lead to other jobs.

To dramatize his point, Brown reminded Regent Norton Simon, an unsuccessful candidate for the U.S. Senate, that Simon "spent $2 million to attain an office paying $42,000 a year."

The governor's remarks were inspired by the $47,000 salary approved for a new appointee as hospital director on the Davis campus.

The state director of health, Brown said, supervises a budget of $3 billion and only earns $40,000.

"Either the state should change its regulations or the university should change its regulations," Brown said. "Something's wrong."

After the meeting, retiring University President Charles J. Hitch said he agreed in part with the governor. "I think state salaries are too low. I think the solution is to increase state salaries."

Hitch said high salaries are needed to attract top talent, and added "I don't know any state except New York where the president of the university doesn't make more than the governor."

In spite of Brown's comments, Hitch said he had good relations with the governor. Hitch said, "I expect criticism and I don't resent it."

Brown's blunt talk was characteristic of his appearances at meetings of the regents since he took office.

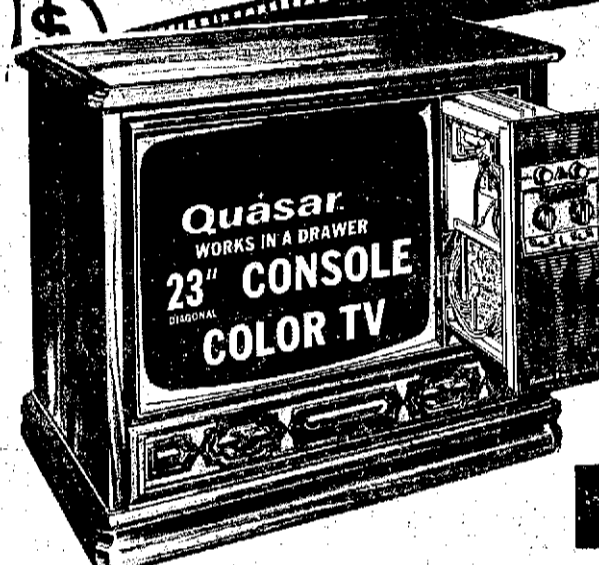

When the regents spent 25 minutes Friday talking about where student and alumni regent designate — persons who have not yet taken full office — should sit, he called it a "classic scholastic discussion about how many regents can sit at the end of the table."

SALVIAS (SAGE) ... good flowering plant

A real eye-catcher

By JOE LITTLEFIELD

Among the various flowering plants that catch most gardeners' eyes when visiting nurseries is the scarlet tubular flower, salvia splendens.

Though an annual, it grows to several feet and provides summer color that vies with the brilliant Southern California sunshine.

Three other salvias are perennials that furnish needed blue in a sunny garden.

Salvia pitcheri's intense blue on an inch-size blossom is most welcome. So are the blue of salvia farinacea.

Salvia leucantha, a Mexican bush sage with gray leaves produces spikes of velvety violet-purple flowers touched with white. It is cut back to the ground in the winter.

WHILE we're flower gardening, let's not forget the tall lanky poinsettias. Now is a good time to drastically cut them back, even though plant is blooming beautifully.

The cut flowers still would be desirable for indoor decoration even though the Christmas season is past.

Those many long canes should be cut back to within two nodes-buds, where branches were cut back last year. Many years old stubby thick trunks that have inched up several feet high by previous seasons cutbacks may be sawed off to within a foot or so of the ground.

Saw it off just above a scar, or gardener can cut last year's branches into foot-length cuttings, but not the topmost foot-long sections, because those are too soft and may not root. White string should be tied near the top of the cuttings so gardener won't set those leafless cuttings upside down into the soil! The cutting tops should be just above a bud. The cuttings bottoms should be cut just below the buds. They then should be placed in the shade and dry place for several days.

Dry holes should be filled with water. The cuttings are set into the individual holes with two or three buds buried below ground level. The soil is filled in firmly around them, then watered well. No more watering until the soil has dried down several inches deep. The cuttings eventually root — presto, new plants!

CALIFORNIA FARMER, the agriculturists magazine, Sept. 1, 1973, (page 161) issue had an interesting story titled "What's So Good About Manure?" It states:

"Is there some mysterious benefit from manure on the soil?" Dr. Burl Meek, of the Imperial Valley Conservation Research Center, says soil effect from 40 ton per acre per year were: Less cracking and crusting, followed by better germination of sorghum. Grain yields averaged up to 1,900 pounds, with 4,100 pounds before, and 6000 pounds after.

Meek points out that manure contains 9 to 10 per cent salts, 2 to 3 per cent organic nitrogen, 10 per cent water to oven dryness, 2 per cent potash on wet basis, and costs at least $2 a ton to haul it to a close disposal site. But it performs far beyond its suspected capacity.

Incidentally 160 tons manure per year per acre is too much. The soil didn't perform as well."

There is a steer manure practically salt free, weed free, aged for 9 months, double-milled and screened, that is nearly a humus. It is ideal for top dressing lawns, and as a mulch over the soil of flower beds, shrubs and trees, and more economical than some of the humus materials. Such organic material improves the soil structure, retains moisture, and improves the soil texture.

GARDEN JOBS

Attack weed seeds of spurge, chick weed, clover and many other small broad weeds by using a pre-emerge herbicide which kills, sterilizes the weed seeds from sprouting in dichondra lawn.

Professional gardeners prefer to use a turf fertilizer containing such a herbicide, plus another type a post-emerge that attacks the oxalis creeping weed with the single yellow flower.

Buy the fertilizer that provides the most value.

This means one that covers the same area as any other competitive ones plus costing about the same price, but has more than just nitrogen fertilizer.

For best feeding results lawn also needs phosphoric acid and potash.

Should the fertilizer also have some trace minerals mixed with it so much the better, because the trace minerals help combat the salts build up in the lawn turf.

Such fertilizers, too, should have insecticide

THREE EASY WAYS TO "CHARGE-IT"

Manipulation of plants

NEW YORK (AP)—Scientists here tried to prune a thorny contention: plants have feelings.

A panel of biologists says that the notion plants are sentient is sensational and scientifically unsupportable.

"We know plants don't have nervous systems," Arthur W. Galston, a Yale University biologist, said at the 141st annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. "But they do have little (electrical) currents flowing through them and are subject to outside manipulation."

Galston says plants show altered electrical responses to light, chemical agents or disease. But he says he draws the line when it comes to a claim by a lie detector test expert that plants "respond to human thoughts and events, including life elimination."

The theory that plants show discomfort in response to human thought or acts such as killing other living things was advanced in 1968 by Cleve Backster, a polygraph expert and former CIA employee.

Backster, whose experiment with plants has been popularized in the best selling book "The Secret Life of Plants," performed "a very provocative experiment which startled a great many people," according to Galston.

The experiment by Backster found that plants hooked up to lie detector equipment registered on graphs their discomfort when brine shrimp were dropped into boiling water and killed.

Science is based on data that can be repeated by duplicating the experiment, Galston said by way of introducing two other biologists who attempted to repeat Backster's experiment.

"WE WERE unable to confirm his observations," said Edgar L. Gasteiger, a physical biologist at Cornell University's School of Veterinary Medicine. He said his students, who proposed trying to prove Backster's contention, found no difference than what might have occurred by chance despite repeated testing.

"As far as we can determine, there is no correlation whatsoever between killing of brine shrimp and getting a response from a plant," concluded a second scientist, John M. Kmetz, of Science Unlimited Research Foundation, which was set up specifically to try to duplicate Backster's findings.

At the news conference, Backster called the findings of Kmetz a "domestic relations squabble" rather than "scientific controversy."

Home gardening

Brussels sprouts are the least popular of the common vegetables with home and community gardeners. They also cause gardeners more problems than any vegetable except winter squash.

Tomatoes are by far the most popular vegetable for home gardens, followed by string beans, onions and cucumbers.

These are among the findings of a Gallup survey released by Gardens for All, Inc., Norwalk, Conn., a nonprofit organization for the advancement of community gardening as a way for consumers to fight inflation.

The survey was conducted during the summer and fall of 1974 by The Gallup Organization, Princeton, N.J., on behalf of Gardens for All. According to James Baker, GFA president, community gardening is gardening by individuals on their own individual plots, but on land which they do not own themselves.

ONIONS and radishes are less popular in the East than elsewhere. Gardeners in the South are less likely than those in other regions to plant lettuce, but more likely to plant corn, peas or sweet potatoes.

In the West ca-rots, beets and asparagus are more popular than in other regions.

Tomatoes were the most popular vegetable in all regions (East, Midwest, South, West), even though 21 per cent of gardeners who planted them reported having some problem in growing them. Among those who planted winter squash one in four (25 per cent) had some problem. Other vegetables with which gardeners frequently reported problems were brussels sprouts (23 per cent), corn (21 per cent), cucumber (17 per cent), beets, cabbage and radishes (all 16 per cent).

Sweet potatoes, herbs and asparagus appeared to be the easiest to grow. Only 2 per cent of the gardeners who planted these vegetables reported having problems.

The survey showed that over nine in 10 (92 per cent) gardeners report planting tomatoes. Among other vegetables frequently grown, the majority of gardeners report planting string beans (63 per cent), onions (59 per cent), cucumbers (58 per cent), peppers (57 per cent), radishes (51 per cent), and lettuce (50 per cent).

In contrast, the survey

Commentary Iraq may use 'black gold' to rebuild ancient Babylon

By MARK CLUTTER
Religion Editor

"Fallen, fallen is Babylon the Great!"

But Babylon will arise again if the oil-rich Arab nation of Iraq has its way. Iraq is beginning the most fabulous urban renewal in history.

Babylon is deeply etched in the religious memories of Jews, Christians and Moslems as a symbol of what happens to any society which arrogantly misuses its power.

Oddly, except through literature, little is known about Babylon. It was built strategically between the Tigris and Euphrates rivers. They provided irrigation in a desert land. They gave the city control of the large river commerce. And they provided military defense.

But there was one serious disadvantage. Rivers do flood and change their courses. Most of Babylon is buried beneath the silt of thousands of years.

There were many Babylons during thousands of years. Each new Babylon was built on the ruins of fallen Babylons. If the excavation is completed, historians will have a complete picture back to the dawn of civilization.

The archaeological digs have been casual and esultory. Iraq has hired an Italian archaeologist, Giorgio Gullini, to do the whole job. Much of his work will involve drainage of subsurface water.

The imagination gives a picture of a possible new Babylon. The Bible tells of a Babylon of luxury, hedonism and elegance. If in some future the Middle East becomes safe for tourism, the Iraqis might build a supercolossal Babylon resort that would make all the past Babylons look like country villages.

At Babylon is the ruin of the "Tower of Babel," a military stronghold. It is probably not the Babel described in the Bible.

The Iraqis might do well to ponder on that story. The people decided to build a tower that would reach to heaven. But the tongues of the builders — the scientists and technicians — became confused. They started talking different languages and could not communicate. So the project was abandoned.

Perhaps the Americans too should ponder on that tale.

INDEPENDENT PRESS TELEGRAM RELIGION

PASSOVER — March 27 this year — is the very center and meaning of the Jewish religion. But it is not easy to celebrate by Jews who are far from Jewish communities.

The Seder — the Passover dinner — requires two things: the company of another Jew and unleavened bread. A Jew can usually find another Jew, even in a tiny, remote military outpost, but where does he find the food?

So the good women of the National Jewish Welfare Board send "soloseder" to military personnel, Peace Corps personnel, VA hospitals and embassies. Each packet contains matzot (unleavened bread), gefilte fish, chicken dinner with matzoh balls, chocolate and a Haggadah and Passover greeting card.

Some Christians find it hard to understand Jews. Understanding begins by knowing that they are the people of the Passover, the beginning of the Exodus. They preferred God's hard freedom in the desert to the humiliation of slavery.

The Jews are the freedom choosers. Like the Christians, they have not always lived up their ideal. But in the heart of every Jew is the central fact of the Passover.

THE ROMAN Catholic Church in the United States is in trouble. It is facing a severe shortage of priests. Young men are simply not entering that ministry.

The highest number of priests was 59,892 in 1967. The decline now is only 3,180. The real crisis will be felt in the next five years or so.

Enrollments in the seminaries have dropped 50 per cent in seven years. There is also a sharp decline in the number of women seeking religious vocations.

What is going wrong? Have sharp changes in practices and ideas come so fast that the young are confused? A Priest who resigned said, "I didn't leave the Church. The Church left me."

Or is there something wrong with the morale of contemporary youth? Are many young people steering clear of professions which require loyalty, discipline and devotion to duty?

THE ATHEISTS are crazy about churches.

Novgorod, Russia, was a city of churches dating back to the 12th century. At the time of the Bolshevik Revolution the city possessed eight monasteries, seven nunneries, two seminaries; three cathedrals, 45 independent churches, 13 chapels and 38 church schools with churches attached — all for a population of 27,000. Of course, pilgrims came from all over Russia to the city of churches.

In World War II the Nazis swept through Novgorod and bogged down just outside. In four years of war Novgorod and its churches took a beating.

Since then the Communists have restored more than 50 churches at fantastic costs. But only one functions as a church. Others are used as restaurants, residences and other purposes, including a Museum of Atheism.

Why do the Russians act this way? The answer can be found in their intense patriotism. Early in the Revolution bandits looted art treasures and sold them in Western Europe. The novelist, Maxim Gorki, carried on a one-man crusade to halt the pilfering, arguing that everything historical belonged to the people.

Modern Russia, which is anti-church and anti-aristocracy, almost worships the heritage of the past. A visit to the royal city of St. Petersburg, now Leningrad, is almost obligatory to educated Russians.

ARE YOU ready to go hungry as a religious duty?

Fasting is a part of the Judeo-Christian tradition which has seldom been observed in recent centuries. Its purpose was to foster temperance and self-discipline. It was an act of personal self-improvement, not an expression of charity.

Now many kinds of churches are calling for fasting to feed the world's hungry. Just give the money you save from the meals you miss to feed the starving.

The need is beyond comprehension. Inflation has brought malnutrition to millions of Americans. Famine extends in a broad belt across Africa as the Sahara Desert appears to be marching south. Bangladesh, wracked by war and natural disasters, is dying of famine. India, parts of South America and many other lands know starvation.

Methodists, Roman Catholics, Mormons and Southern Baptists are among those calling for fasting. The idea is said to be spreading on college campuses.

Mostly the recommended fasting would be no great hardship. A Methodist bishop urges skipping one meal a week. In St. Louis 700 Catholics pledged to fast two days each week. Traditionally a fast is limiting oneself to one meal a day.

If Americans generally skipped just one meal a week and gave its cost to famine relief, there would still be hunger in the world — but not so much.

It would make the Americans happier and healthier.

Library film service cut

Film service at the main Long Beach Public Library has been canceled because of an equipment breakdown, librarian Frances Henselman said Friday.

Bookings for next week cannot be honored, she said.

The breakdown occurred in a film-cleaning machine, and its repair date is uncertain, she said.

Hunt suspended for sinking boat

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The Coast Guard suspended its search Friday for a boat with three persons aboard reportedly sinking about 20 miles south of San Diego.

Three helicopters and a Coast Guard cutter were dispatched to the area near the southernmost Coronado Island after a faint, muffled distress call was received about 1 a.m. Friday, but no trace of a boat was found after searching 240 square miles of ocean, a Coast Guard spokesman said.

night at 7:30 in the Community Room of the Community Savings and Loan Association Bldg., 3901 Atlantic Blvd. Guests welcome.

The Lakewood Garden Club will hold its spring luncheon ($2), Thursday, in the Youth Center, at noon. There will be a "Funny Bunny Botique" table with gifts, food, plants and cut flowers. Guest lecturer will be Emma Yee who will discuss flower arranging.

'Gays' demanding right Honor for to become ministers monsignor

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
UPI Religion Writer

Homosexuals, in increasing numbers, are "coming out of the closet" and demanding to take their place in society—including the pulpits of the nation's churches.

For centuries, the Christian church has abhorred and condemned the practice of homosexuality.

General Conference (convention).

The issue was first raised when the church's Youth Council passed a resolution asking that homosexuality "not be a bar to the ministry" and saying that "homosexuality in itself not be in any way synonymous with immorality."

In recent years, however, there has been a growing recognition on the part of some within the church that homosexuals were a group that needed to be both accepted and ministered to and in several denominations there are now ex officio "gay caucuses" working to protect or expand the rights and recognition of homosexuals both in and out of church life.

In the 10.3 million member United Methodist Church, the issue threatens to be, in one view, the most divisive issue "since the slavery controversy split American Methodism back in 1847" and is already pegged as a key issue for Methodism's 1976

News movement have concluded that "a homosexual storm is, in fact, gathering."

"Should General Conference decide that homosexual practice is not wrong," declared an editorial in the movement's magazine Good News, "then the floodgates would be wide open."

"Full acceptance of homosexuals into the ordained ministry ... would drive out multitudes ... not only evangelicals, but those who feel a deep and basic sense of unrighteousness about homosexual practice."

Caught between what it feels to be the extremes of the Youth Council and the Good News Movement, the Division of Ordained Ministry of the church's Board of Higher Education and Ministry recently issued a statement that ordination of homosexuals would not be consistent with the present policy of the church but at the same time calling for more research and study of the issue.

The church's "social principles" statement, adopted in 1972, says that "we do not condone the practice of homosexuality and consider this practice incompatible with Christian teaching."

According to the division that precludes homosexuals from being ordained.

At the same time, however, the social principles declare that "homosexuals no less than heterosexuals are persons of sacred worth" and insists "their human civil rights" should be insured.

The Division of Ordained Ministry's statement, issued by its staff with the approval of its executive committee, notes that general norms for qualifying candidates for the ministry are interpretation of Scripture, the tradition of the church, academic preparation and spiritual formation.

Good News, at a recent meeting of its board of directors, reaffirmed its opposition not only to ordination but to employment of homosexuals "in positions of responsibility" and has undertaken a fund-raising campaign to prevent any change in the church's current stance.

Monsignor Michael C. Healy of St. Bernard's Catholic Church in Bellflower will celebrate his silver jubilee as pastor of that church with a Solemn Mass of Thanksgiving at 5 p.m. today in the parish church.

Following the Mass a Silver Jubilee dinner-dance will be held in the parish hall from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m.

Monsignor Healy received his official scroll of appointment to prelate of honor last May. He has been a priest for 45 years. Born Oct. 4, 1906, in County Cork, Ireland, Msgr. Healy attended Mt. Mellerey Seminary, Cappoquin, County Waterford, and St. John's College, Waterford before he was ordained June 19, 1929.

His first assignment was as assistant pastor at St. Clement's, Ocean Park. Since 1930 Msgr. Healy has been assigned to many churches. He came to Bellflower from Azusa 25 years ago.

Mormon church

A new church will be built by the Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter-day Saints near the corner of Bloomfield Street and Cerritos Avenue on the boundary of the cities of Cypress and Los Alamitos.

The church, which will contain a large chapel, classrooms, a library, a cultural hall and basketball court and a kitchen, will cost $1.5 million.

Testimonials

Religion Editor:

I feel that being a Christian I must answer the letter that appeared in your column: With the heading "Jews and Jesus" by Dr. Paul J. Hull. His letter had many merits and I feel he is sincere in what he believes, he states that Jesus is not the Messiah and the second coming of Jesus is not in his bible.

May I give my evidence of why I know that Jesus is the Messiah and I know him because his spirit lives in me. I was a happy person until 1955 then the roof fell in and for 17 years I suffered two fates worse than death. I started gambling and I couldn't quit. I lied, wrote bad checks, borrowed thousands of dollars, went to the brink of insanity with my gambling. I tried my power, gambler's anonymous, prayed to God, all the saints but nothing happened.

To make matters worse my brother had kidney failure and my family was looking to me to give him one of my kidneys. I was weak, lost, fearful and a coward. All my friends left me.

Then I found a little paper on the ground about Jesus: saying "Behold I stand at the door and any man who hears my voice and opens the door I will come unto him." Revelations 3:20. I still rejected him: then one March day in 1971 when I was at the bottom, close to suicide, no place to get any money, my family and friends turned away from me. I found myself at a school playground with tears running down my face. I looked up to the sky and with one sentence: "Jesus take over my life. I am lost."

That's all I said: I didn't have to go through any ceremonies, make any promises, I didn't even have to love him all I said was please take over my life: To quote a passage from John 9:25 when the blind man answered the priests: "I don't know whether Jesus is good or bad all I know is I was blind and he made me see." How true it is with me: from that day forward here are the results.

1. He cured me of compulsive gambling.

2. He gave me his courage and I gave one of my kidneys to my brother two years ago to save his life (try faking courage).

3. He changed my blood which was type O to A+ to match my brother perfectly (I was type O in Air Force) my brother was A+.

4. It was the first three artery transplant that was done from a live donor. (I had three arteries to my kidney) it took nine hours to operate.

5. I testified to my brother-in-law Frank Laguinta who had many years of illness and was fading fast. He accepted Christ and I told him he is cured. He is now in bible school.

6. My whole family turned and accepted Jesus and they are all at peace.

Show Jesus your troubles and watch them disappear when he comes into your life: All you have to do is ask.

Religion Editor:

Should Women be clergy?

This question seems to refer mostly to Catholic women becoming priests and as I am a Protestant perhaps I don't share the same thought as a Catholic does. However, if I may offer a suggestion, I would only offer it by reference to the Bible which I feel all faiths should abide by. I respectfully refer to 1st Corinthians 14: 34 & 35; 34: Let your women keep silent in the churches for it is not permitted unto them to speak; but they are commanded to be under obedience, as also saith the law. 35: And if they will learn anything, let them ask their husbands at home; for it is a shame for women to speak in the church.

To eternity

My religion means more to me than I can find words in our vocabulary to adequately explain.

When I think of the terrible death Jesus went through on the cross just so my sins could be forgiven and I could be saved to be taken home to eternity with him, I have been known to cry in sympathy for him.

When we know how badly Jesus wants us to be saved you just want to live your life for him.

When you are living a Christian life, the whole world just seems to be a better world than what it really is because you are associating with Christian people.

Our Saviour's Lutheran Love makes happy church

By MARK CLUTTER

"This is a friendly church. The stranger who visits us is made to feel very welcome," said Virgil F. Bjerke, senior pastor of Our Saviour's Lutheran Church, 370 Junipero Ave.

"Of course, friendliness is not the whole purpose of a church, but it is important because it opens the door to everything the church has to offer."

Friendliness is also characteristic in the various aspects of church life, he said. In that part of Long Beach it is inevitable that many members would be elderly. But the church also has a strong youth program.

"Our older members are intensely interested in the young people and want them to have the best," Pastor Bjerke said.

The passerby on Junipero thinks he sees a little church. This is an illusion because the intersection of Junipero and Carroll Park makes the church roughly triangular in shape. It is a big church. The plant is valued at $1.2 million. There are 1900 members.

The church was organized as a Norwegian church in 1950. It met first on Sunday afternoons in the sanctuaries of hospitable churches. It was incorporated under the name of the First Scandinavian Church of Long Beach but a little later took the present name. English replaced the Norwegian language in a few years.

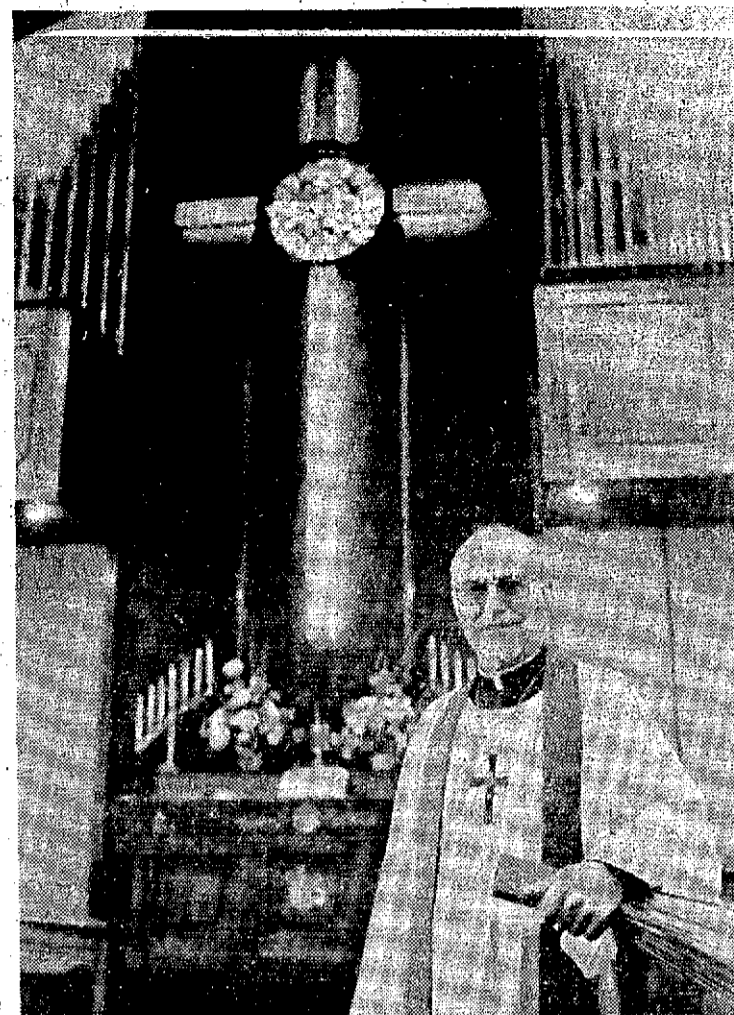

"This is a happy church because we love God and each other, and there is another reason; we are busy. This is a workshop where Christians are made," the pastor said.

A partial listing shows 21 important activities in the church.

Music has a major emphasis. In 1965 the church bought a $50,000 Reuter organ. There is a chancel choir and youth choirs. David Dalke is organist and chancel choir director. The church has sponsored many outstanding musical events, the latest being the appearance here of the prestigious Concordia College Choir.

Pastor Bjerke explained a bit about Lutherans.

There are three major Lutheran "denominations" in America. But they are not denominations in the sense of Presbyterians and Baptists. A Lutheran is a Lutheran. Members can transfer from one to the other.

PASTOR VIRGIL F. BJERKE

The Lutheran Church of America is the most liberal, he said.

The Lutheran Church, Missouri Synod, is ultra-conservative.

The American Lutheran Church, to which Our Saviour's belongs, is middle of the road.

"We are Christ centered, Bible based, evangelical and conservative," he said.

"The word 'evangelical' needs some explanation. We are not evangelistic in the usual sense of the word. I am not a shouter. We don't knock on doors seeking converts. But we do seek to make our presence known in the community. We are community-oriented."

The nave and chapel have beautiful stained glass which was planned by Pastor Bjerke. "I'm no artist," he said. "I simply chose the Bible passages for the artist to portray."

The emphasis on youth caused the church to build a collegiate-sized gym. The sports program is mostly intramural.

Pastor Bjerke, 56, has been with Our Saviour's more than 21 years. He earlier held pastorates in South Dakota. He is a graduate of Augustana College, Sioux Falls, S. D., and of Luther Seminary, St. Paul. He will receive his doctor of philosophy from California Graduate School of Theology, Glendale, in June.

He has a wife, Phyllis, and five children, Esther (wife of the Rev. Paul Larsen), Naomi (Mrs. Mike Blackmore), Wayne, Luther and John, 9.

Our Saviour's has a staff of 15, some of them part time. They are Bjerke, the Rev. Thomas L. Lange, assistant pastor; the Rev. Paul H. POSITIVE THINKING

by Norman Vincent Peale

There's Always A Way

"When difficulty hits you, things tend to get dark, especially your thoughts. Outcomes may be obscured and situations even seem hopeless."

But there is something you can do to meet any situation creatively. Try the pray-think formula. The praying is for getting mental calmness, so you won't panic. Then your mind can start delivering ideas. It's only when you are emotionally calm that ideas come; and, of course, ideas are just what you must have. Only then will you be able to think your way out of that difficulty and perhaps even gain a result better than would have seemed possible.

For example, take the case of "Miss Lou" — as she was affectionately known down in Mississippi prior to her recent death. I first met Mrs. Louise Williamson when she had been recently widowed. Her meager and dwindling resources were forcing this gentle lady to undertake some kind of gainful activity. But having lived a sheltered life she lacked any training for supporting herself. Accordingly, she was apprehensive about her future.

I told her about the pray-and-think formula. She used it and it had the salutary effect of conditioning her emotionally and drawing off tension so that she became able to think through her problem in a rational and creative manner. But there seemed to be no type of work for which she had any aptitude. "How about becoming a restaurant hussler, or college housemother?" I asked.

"Oh, no, I'm too shy for that."

"Can you cook, or sew, or paint?"

"No, unfortunately, I've never had to do any of those. I'm totally without ability or experience."

But unwilling to draw a blank, I continued exploring possibilities finally asking, "Can you make candy by any chance?"

"Why yes, I have made candy for my friends, but I wouldn't think of selling it."

"Why not?" I asked. "Your friends might feel freer to ask for more if you would let them pay for it. Since people like homemade sweets so much it's just possible you could work up a nice little business." But Miss Lou was very hesitant and doubtful, so I made the supreme sacrifice. Despite my own weight consciousness I told her I would sample her candies if she would mail me some. This she did and the verdict was: absolutely delicious!

So I persuaded her to start a little business with a small candy kitchen in her home and, against her natural inclinations, to install a modest sign on the lawn. It so happened that she was on a main road near her town of Edwards, Miss. She placed signs on the highway attractively heralding Lou's Candy Kitchen as the sweetest spot on Highway 80! The project became so successful that people came from far and wide for her candy, and later she added a mail-order service.

But she did more than establish a business. She grew into quite a dynamic and outgoing personality.

Seminarian's bet hits jackpot

By THEODORE A. ILIFF

LAKE LOTAWANA, Mo. (UPI) — Seminary student David Finestead may have started a new trend in small-town religion — by gambling.

Finestead, 30, assisting the congregation at the Lake Lotawana United Methodist Church, put $1,000 of his own money on the line to teach a lesson in the Bible.

Finestead handed out the cash to the congregation in this small suburb of Kansas City in September with the challenge to do something with the money and return the profits to the church.

He said he was attempting to illustrate the Parable of the Talents, in which a man gave three servants money as he left for a trip. Two returned profits, but one was afraid he would lose the money, so he buried it.

"The third servant was strongly scolded by his master," Finestead said. "The parable shows how God's grace should be used, not just accepted. I thought the best way to demonstrate the parable was with money."

A series of bake sales, lawn mowing, music lessons and other activities hit the community that includes affluent Kansas City executives and a mixture of mechanics, store owners and farmers. In November, the congregation returned more than $3,300 to the church.

Finestead got back his $1,000, and the rest went into the church treasury.

"I think the experiment gave the image that the church is where it's at and moving in a good direction," Finestead said. "The experiment established new faith in our church. People see what we do here and figure it must be all right, so they better join in. Our new pledge cards are a reflection of that statement."

He said 33 new members have joined the church since the project began.

Publicity of Finestead's gamble on the honesty and sincerity of his congregation brought inquiries from other churches. The only danger in trying his approach, he said, is that organizers might make it too complicated.

BACK IN SERVICE as Boston Harbor tourist attraction is USS Constitution, popularly known as Old Ironsides. The 178-year-old frigate is the oldest warship.

Old Ironsides gets shipshape to greet Bicentennial visitors

BOSTON (AP) — Old Ironsides, the frigate launched 178 years ago and the world's oldest commissioned warship, reopened to visitors under spanking-new flags and rigging Friday, just in time for the nation's Bicentennial celebration.

Long one of Boston's most popular attractions, the ship known officially as the USS Constitution has been in drydock for overhaul for two years.

The $4.4 million work is not yet finished, but the Navy said it expects nearly 1.5 million visitors to tour the ship before the year is out, half again as many as came aboard in 1972.

She now smells of new lumber and varnish, and her intricate rigging contrasts starkly against the city's modern skyline.

Local militia companies and drum-and-bugle corps in colonial costume turned out for the reopening ceremonies.

Navy Secretary J. William Middendorf, principal speaker at the ceremonies, took the occasion to warn of the need for a bigger Navy, now with only half the ships it had a few years ago.

"We must build up the fleet again so the Navy can continue to be preeminent in the world," he said.

Launched in 1797 and completed at a cost of $302,718, the 52-gun, three-masted frigate fought 40 battles and was never beaten or seriously damaged.

It earned its fame in skirmishes during the War of 1812. According to legend, Old Ironsides won its nickname in a battle with the British frigate Guerriere, whose cannonballs seemed to bounce off the Constitution's sides.

Her crew of 60 sailors now keeps the vessel shipshape and offers tours of her closely spaced decks that have so little headroom — colonial sailors were shorter than they are now — that anyone over average height has to stoop.

The renovation, fifth for the ship, should last 40 years.

Her last major overhaul came after schoolchildren contributed coins in 1927 to finance a tour of U.S. ports when federal funds were not forthcoming.

Her first restoration, in 1833, saved the ship from the breaker's yard after Oliver Wendell Holmes Sr. penned his famous poem beginning, "Aye, tear her tattered ensign down."

Rotting timbers, all copper-bottom sheathing and all planking above the waterline are being replaced this time, and rigging and masts restored. Much of the original planking remains.

Berthed here since 1934, the ship makes one cruise a year — a brief trip into the harbor under tow to be turned around so she will weather equally on each side.

IRS spies reportedly probed sex activities

MIAMI (UPI) — The Internal Revenue Service in Miami hired spies in 1972 to probe the private lives—especially the sex habits—of 30 state and federal officials, the Miami News reported Friday.

The News, in a copyrighted story, quoted a "Jane Doe" who said she was part of the Operation Leprechaun IRS spy group in Miami and was promised "$20,000 a year for life and eventually a home outside the country" for her work.

sworn affidavits. Her information, the News said, dovetailed with earlier information the newspaper was given by an IRS agent who was assigned to a special intelligence-gathering unit during the latter years of ex-President Richard M. Nixon's administration.

"Specifically," the woman told the News, "they wanted information on the personal lives of the officials, what they were doing, where they were going, who they were hanging around with, their sex life and their drinking habits."

As the operation developed, she said, the emphasis of the spying

"became completely on sex."

The woman said she was never told where the information she gathered was going, "but I assumed it was the secretary of the Treasury or the White House."

Holger Euringer, Florida public-information officer for the IRS, said of the report:

"I DON'T think that now we are in a position to deny that some of the information we got was definitely not tax-related. But when someone gives you a packet of information, it's apt to contain anything."

Euringer said the IRS had confidential informants "just like any other federal agencies." He added: "We are not doing that now. We are re-evaluating our entire intelligence-gathering situation."

The woman told the News the IRS reneged on its promise of $20,000 for life and in fact usually paid her only $200 a week — "sometimes more, sometimes less."

When she decided to quit the operation, the woman said, an IRS agent told her she might have "a fatal accident" if she ever revealed the nature of her work with the agency.

The News said the woman changed her name and residence after quitting her job as an IRS spy.

Hollywood with her sister. In six months she was cast opposite Gary Grant in "Beau Geste."

Under contract to Paramount, she starred in "Reap the Wild Wind" and "Adam Had Four Sons." Thereafter her career soared in "Smash-Up," "The Hairy Ape," "Tap Roots" and "My Foolish Heart."

She was nominated for Academy Award Oscars for her performances in "Smash-Up," "My Foolish Heart" and "With a Song in My Heart."

Miss Hayward turned away from movies in 1957 with her marriage to Chalkley, a former FBI man, to live on his farm in Carrollton, Ga. The couple later moved to Washington, D.C., and then Fort Lauderdale, Fla., where Chalkley died.

She returned to acting in 1971, starring opposite William Holden in "The Revengers." Later that year she made her television debut in "Fitzgerald and Pride," a proposed television series.

The actress is survived by son Timothy and his twin brother Gregory, born in February 1945.

'Buzzing' pilot arrested after 'copter chase

A 43-year-old Bellflower man was charged with careless and reckless flying Friday after he led a sheriff's helicopter on an hour-long, 100-mile chase over the Southland.

Deputies said the chase began at 2 p.m. after an off-duty deputy spotted a Cessna 172 "buzzing" the fourth floor of a Whittier medical building.

He called other deputies, who dispatched the helicopter. A short time later the sheriff's aircraft spotted a plane piloted by Louis Amilcar, 9500 Cedar St., and gave chase.

The pursuit took place over residential areas from Norwalk to La Verne to Long Beach, and finally to Huntington Beach's Meadowlark Airport, where the plane landed.

Deputies said Amilcar gave no reason for his actions when he was arrested.

Fullerton boy killed by auto

An eight-year-old Fullerton boy was killed Friday when he darted into the street and was hit by a car, police said.

Carl Lee Kann, of 225 S. Jensen Way, was struck by a car driven by a Ceritos woman in the 2500 block of West Valencia Drive in Fullerton.

UNSAFE SQUAD CARS GOODS

In that accident, Marie Woods, of 225 E. Del Amo Blvd., was killed by a police car as she crossed Long Beach Boulevard near Home Street. Investigators said the elderly woman apparently stepped in front of the car driven by officer John Finn.

Finn was not cited at the time, but the case is currently in litigation, according to City Attorney Leonard Putnam, who declined to discuss the case further.

Both Duple and Putnam said several officers have complained about the braking systems on the Coronets, and a police spokesman said officers driving the black-and-white Dodges still in service Thursday were ordered not to exceed 45 miles an hour.

damage, the spokesman said.

"You need 100 per cent braking, 100 per cent car all the time, and these cars have not been giving officers the performance they need to do their jobs safely," Duple said. "We suspect that some of these vehicles have not been operating at 100 per cent efficiency all the time."

He said tests revealed that most of the cars run through the LAPD course had trouble braking in a straight line, and added: "The prime concern of officers now and in the future will be if these vehicles will stop; can we get maximum braking in a straight line?"

Duple, who last year led the 600-member police officers' association in a dispute with the city for higher pay and more uniformed patrolmen, said there were no ill feelings between the officers and the city over the car situation.

"WE'RE concerned about making sure that there is an adequate number of patrolmen on the street in safe vehicles," Duple said.

"We know we have a problem, but we don't know how serious it is, and we're working jointly to find the cause and make corrections."

Duple said members of the association met with Putnam and a representative of the city manager's office Friday, then later discussed the problem with Chief of Police William J. Mooney and Assistant Chief Ralph Kortz.

"We came away with the feeling that the city manager and the city attorney are very concerned about the men on the streets," Duple said.

He added that the association hoped the cars could be checked, the problems corrected and the cars certified for service next week. More tests are scheduled at the beginning of the week, Duple said.

PUTNAM, however, said the cars were inspected by a representative of the dealer, Glenn E. Thomas Dodge, but that the results of that inspection are not known.

"It means retailers are having no difficulty cutting back their inventories," Kellner said. "At some point soon, they are going to run out of enough goods to sell and then they will have to place new orders."

This is a critical step in increasing production and recalling workers laid off in the massive cutbacks in the last five months.

But, economists said, it could take several months for this process to result in reduction of unemployment and, in the meantime, layoffs and production cutbacks will continue.

In Fort Mill, S.C., Springs Mills said it is idling for one week 7,500 textile workers by closing nine plants in South Carolina. Workers at eight of the plants have been working only four-day weeks.

Eastman Kodak said it is laying off for one week 500 employees at its Rochester, N.Y., Elm-grove plant.

TAX BILL COMPLETED

—Repeal the excise tax on buses and trucks.

—Provide what amounts to a $1 billion tax credit for corporations that suffered operating losses in recent years. Chief among the beneficiaries of this provision are Chrysler Corp., which would be eligible for an immediate $150-million tax rebate; Lockheed, eligible for $65 million, and Pan American World Airways, $40 million.

This relief was provided by allowing corporations to carry back their losses over an eight-year period, instead of the current three years. Thus, Pan Am, for example, could offset its big losses in 1970 and 1971 against its profitable years.

—Approve a package of tax breaks for small business, by allowing a greater credit for buying used machinery and by reducing the corporate income-tax rate for such operations.

The committee voted to slash by 4 per cent the tax rate on the first $4,000 of taxable income in 1975 and 1976 in an effort to offset the effects of inflation on the tax bills of families making $20,000 or less.

This would mean a $40 cut in the liability of every tax return, except the effect would be somewhat less for persons whose incomes fall below the $4,000 level.

In sponsoring that amendment, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., noted that while inflation had increased the tax bill of all Americans by an average 6 per cent last year, the effect on those families between $3,000 and $5,000 was a 16.6-per-cent tax hike.

Inflation raised the effective tax of a poverty-level family by 45 per cent last year, but the committee already has voted relief for taxpayers at that income level.

The additional $1.8 billion in business tax breaks approved by the committee is in the form of a higher tax credit for investment in new equipment.

The House approved $2.5 billion by raising the investment tax credit from the present 4 per cent for utilities and 7 per cent for other businesses to 10 per cent across the board but only for one year.

The Senate committee raised the credit to 12 per cent for 1975 and 1976 and to 10 per cent thereafter. In addition, the panel eliminated a House provision that would have barred the giant American Telephone & Telegraph Co. from receiving more than a $100-million credit.

Under AT&T's capital-spending plans, the Senate action would mean an extra $600 million for the company.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., the committee chairman, attached to the bill a requirement that any company receiving the extra investment tax credit must create an "employee-stock-ownership plan."

The company would have to set aside a portion of the tax credit to buy stock for employees. The aim is to allow employees to gradually gain a greater share of ownership of companies for which they work.

L.B. teachers not facing layoffs

By WALT MURRAY
Staff Writer

Despite pending teacher layoffs in several Southland school districts, Long Beach teachers aren't facing dismissals next fall, school officials said Friday.

"We've had just enough retirements, resignations and leaves of absence to reduce staff by attrition," said Donald P. Ashley, assistant superintendent of personnel services.

"We've never had layoffs and we're working vigorously to avoid them. But it's getting harder each year."

He said that no dismissal warning letters have been sent out to Long Beach Unified School District teachers this spring, and there are no plans to send any.

The reduction in school jobs—accomplished by attrition—was necessary because of declining enrollment and state ceilings placed on school expenditures, Ashley said.

School districts such as Los Angeles Unified have been much harder hit by similar problems. An expected $41 million budget deficit may cause the firing of 1,500 employees next fall, 500 of them teachers.

Richard Clowes, superintendent of schools for Los Angeles County, said Friday that 35 of the county's 82 school districts have sent some of their teachers notices that they may be laid off next fall.

The state education code stipulates that if teachers don't receive dismissal warning notices by today, they are automatically employed for the next school year.

In most cases, few of the teachers who do receive March dismissal notices are actually fired. School officials send the notices to anyone they think they might have to let go.

And unlike Los Angeles, most of the 35 school dis-

In the Southland, Downey school officials sent out the largest number of dismissal warning letters—75.

Bellflower Unified School District sent 13 letters, but school officials said they expected to fire only four or five teachers.

Thirteen letters were mailed to temporary and probationary employees in the Los Alamitos elementary school district. It's likely that most of the employees will probably be kept on, however, a school spokesman said.

In Paramount, 19 teachers have been put on notice, but a school official there said he doubted any would be let go.

As in Long Beach, no layoffs are planned in the ABC, Torrance or Huntington Beach Unified School Districts.

A spokesman for the county schools superintendent said that during the last three years the majority of county school districts sent dismissal warning letters to some teachers at least one year.

She said that most of the notices this year were mailed because of the usual causes of declining enrollment and declining state funds.

Several districts are holding elections May 27 to raise revenue limits and many teachers who were put on notice won't be sure of their jobs until then.

Pauley backed on 'C'

By RALPH HINMAN JR.
Staff Writer

Vigorous support for Nobel laureate Linus Pauling and his controversial stand on Vitamin C as a cold preventive was voiced Friday in Long Beach by a physician who credited the chemical with keeping him snuffle-free for three decades.

"Pauling is absolutely right, you know," declared Dr. Granville F. Knight of Santa Monica during an interview aboard the Queen Mary.

The allergy specialist and 1930 Columbia University medical school graduate was participating in the International Academy of Metabolism's fourth annual convention.

"AT THE first symptom of a cold," Knight continued, "I take 1,000 or 2,000 milligrams of Vitamin C and continue this for five or six doses." He chuckled. "Haven't missed a day's work in 30 years."

Diet also is of great significance, he said, and highly refined sugar and white flour should be avoided for health reasons.

Pauling, now teaching at Stanford University, is among those whose continuing belief in the efficacy of Vitamin C has been challenged by other researchers.

Most recently, Drs. Michael H.M. Dykes, an American Medical Association researcher, and Paul Meier, a University of Chicago statistics professor, said there is little evidence the vitamin has any effect on the severity or frequency of common colds.

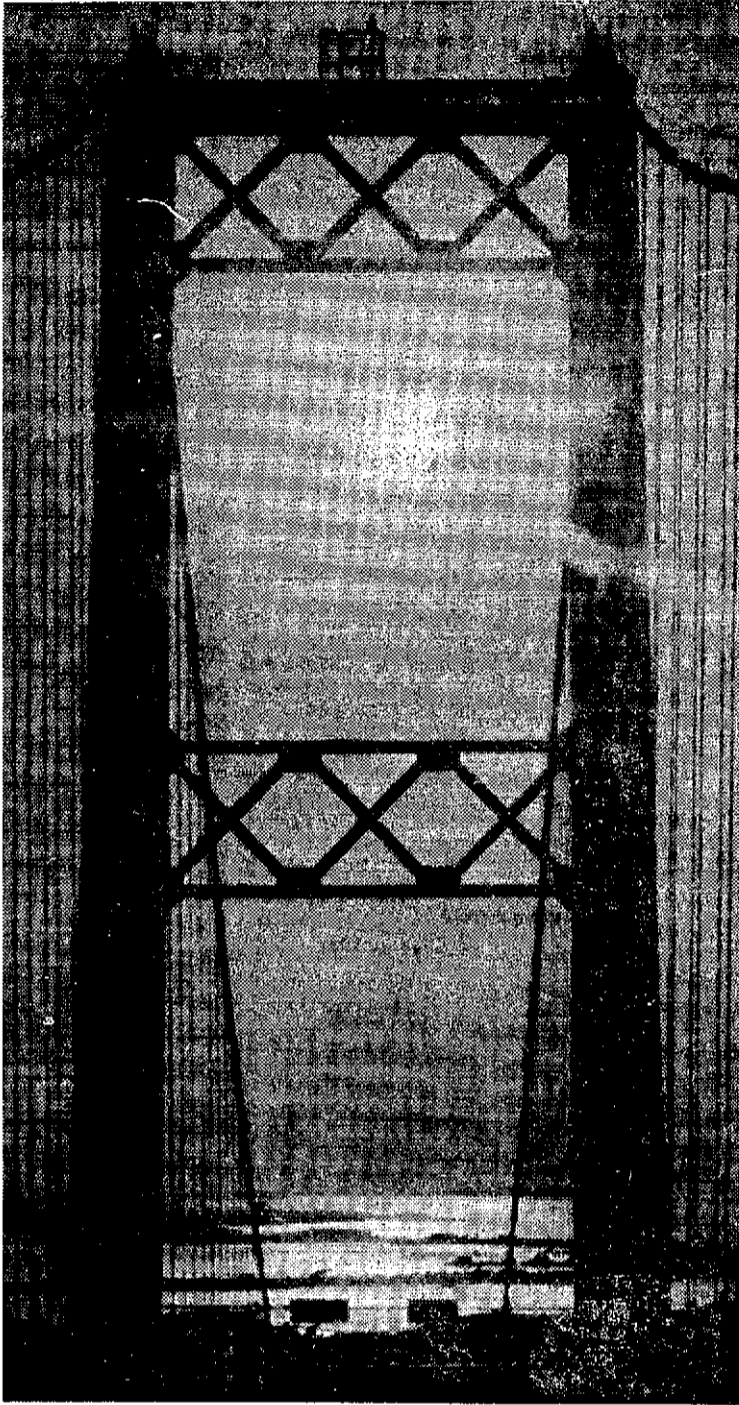

EVIDENCE concerning any potentially dangerous side effects still is unclear, they wrote in last week's AMA Journal, although a number of lesser side effects have been suggested.

Knight, strongly associating himself with Pauling, said he has yet to read this. He said, however, "I have never seen any toxic (poisonous) effects resulting, and I have given large doses intravenously as well as by mouth."

"The only objection I know of has been in guinea pigs given large amounts of ascorbic acid (Vitamin C) during laboratory experiments."

"When deprived of it, they appear to be more susceptible to scurvy," a disease caused by vitamin deficiency.

"Since our diets usually contain a large amount of the vitamin, I don't believe this is something humans need to worry about," he said.

'Good morning, Sunshine'

Following a week of clouds and rain, the Southland sun greeted commuters on the Vincent Thomas Bridge Friday morning with the promise of a bright spring-like day. Independent Press-Telegram staff member Roger Coar photographed the scene from the top of the span looking east over Long Beach Harbor at 7:30 a.m.

Council to consider major Pacific Ave. improvement

Plans for the widening and landscaping of Pacific Avenue between Pacific Coast Highway and Willow Street, a major upgrading in the Wrigley District, will be submitted Tuesday to the Long Beach City Council.

The work will include the construction of center divider islands, with an automatic sprinkler system and landscaping, and the widening of the avenue to provide 33 feet of roadway on each side.

New sidewalks on both sides of the street will be inlaid with decorative tile consisting of strips of standard red tile along the curb and the property line,

At the curb end of some of the perpendicular strips will be a tile-bordered cut-out, which will be a planter well for a palm tree.

Existing light standards will be relocated and modified to use new low-pressure sodium lamps, and existing traffic signal systems will be upgraded, according to City Engineer Tom Marchese. New storm-drain catch basins will be built at three intersections.

Marchese said the plans also call for a decorative electrical system and pole foundations in the dividing islands for use by local organizations for lighted Christmas displays and special events.

Estimated cost of the entire project is $925,000, of which $900,000 will come from gasoline-tax funds. The balance, for the decorative electrical system, will be paid from the general-purpose fund.

The project was hailed by Councilwoman Eunice N. Sato as the culmination of a long campaign by the Wrigley Association, which is made up of businesses, professions and residents of the area, in cooperation with city officials.

"This will be a major uplifting," Mrs. Sato said.

Clergyman named head of housing task force

By MARY CARLTON
Urban Affairs Editor

A clergyman who believes the city "must make hard decisions about the use of available housing funds," has been named general chairman of the city's newly formed 60-member Housing Task Force.

Rev. Galai Gough, minister of the First United Methodist Church, 507 Pacific Ave., was elected at the third organization meeting of the city's advisory group.

NAMED cochairman was LeRoy Doty, a former minister who initiated the Brethren Manor project at 3333 Pacific Place and now heads a corporation, Doty & Associates, 944 Pacific Ave., which specializes in low-cost housing for the elderly.

Purpose of the task force is to serve as grassroots arm for the city planning staff and the consulting firm of Kennard, Delhousie & Gault in the drafting of a housing element for the city's new general plan.

The panel brings together representatives from every facet of community life—architects and neighborhood groups, ethnic minorities and senior citizens, developers and realtors, businessmen and civic leaders, students and the handicapped—including low, medium and high-income property owners and renters.

THEY will establish housing priorities, pinpoint neighborhood problems, update housing demand and supply projections and attempt to determine how Long Beach residents perceive housing conditions in their own and other areas of the city.

"In some neighborhoods in Long Beach," Gough said, "the biggest housing concerns are whether they have enough stalls in the garage for all the family cars or a marina conveniently nearby for the family boat."

"Often, these people have no comprehension of the deplorable housing conditions in other parts of the city."

"BUT THE health of our city and the quality of life for all of our citizens require a broad understanding of the housing problem in every sector and a willingness to support available solutions."

Gough, who serves also as chairman of the housing commission of the city's advisory council of the Los Angeles County Area Agency on Aging, expressed concern over the impact of proposed downtown redevelopment and the ultimate "dislocation of thousands of low-income families and elderly."

"We must anticipate the need...so low-income families and the elderly can be honorably treated and assisted in finding adequate housing within their means," he said, adding:

"Certainly, we do not want another 'Bunker Hill' tragedy, as in Los Angeles, where families and the aged were evicted with no place to go."

He expressed concern, too, about adequate housing for all income and age groups, noting:

"We have lost young families from our church because they could not find adequate housing in Long Beach. There has been a migration of our younger, middle-income families to cities like Huntington Beach and Westminster, where they do find housing to meet the needs of their growing families."

"We must have balance in residential opportunities," he concluded, "so we can attract and hold families...through realistic and helpful priorities and goals for housing in our city."

Impact report for S&L project OK'd

Despite opposition from area organizations, an environmental impact report on a proposed savings and loan company at 4625 E. Second St. has been approved on a 4-1 vote of the Long Beach Planning Commission.

The opposition was based on contentions that there already are too many financial institutions in Belmont Shore, but Planning Director Ernest Mayer Jr. said the decision had to be made "on environmental factors only, not land use."

BECAUSE the applicant, Laguna Federal Savings and Loan Association, proposes to meet all building and zoning regulations, approval of the EIR clears the way for issuance of a building permit and construction of the building.

The site is a triangle formed by Livingston Drive, Second Street and Roycroft Avenue. It now is occupied by a drive-through restaurant, laundromat and real estate office, all of which will be demolished.

The proposed building will be triangular, with 12,000 square feet in two stories. There will be 12 employees, and parking will be provided for 33 cars and a drive-through bank teller, with adequate storage for six vehicles. Estimated cost of the project is $600,000.

Attorney Don Dyer, who said he represented five business and citizen groups in Belmont Shore, Belmont Heights and Naples, said they are "almost totally and unanimously in opposition" to the project, because of the concentration of financial institutions in the area.

Patricia Kempster, 6325 E. Ocean Blvd., and Lawrence Ruff, president of the Beach Area Concerned Citizens, also spoke in opposition.

The Planning Department staff report said the project "will create no significant adverse environmental impacts which could not be mitigated or controlled by corrective measures." It recommended approval of the EIR, subject to compliance with such suggested measures.

COMMISSIONER Shirley Blumberg, who cast the only negative vote, said that whenever the commission approves an EIR, "it automatically is assumed we approve of the project."

Commissioner Richard I. Sugiyama pointed out that the opponents were not against the Laguna Federal project, but against the concentration of institutions of that type.

United funding agencies

Some 194 volunteers are reviewing programs and allocating funds to United Way agencies in Region III which encompasses Long Beach, the Harbor Area, Rio Hondo and part of the South Bay.

Tom Gabbert, associate budget chairman for the region, said each of four United Way budgeting divisions—health, child welfare, counseling and youth and neighborhood and coordinating—will receive a share of United Crusade money based on recommendations made by the members of 11 budgeting panels.

Gabbert said panel members will participate in two to three meetings examining the programs and budget requests of United Way agencies. They will weigh agency requests against needs and available resources, then make recommendations for allocating dollars for services.

Region III includes 27 communities with a population of 1.6 million.

Gabbert, who shares duties with Mrs. E. J. Marks of Long Beach, is vice president for fiscal management of the Douglas Aircraft Co. Division of McDonnell Douglas Corp.

Panel chairmen and vice chairmen from the Long Beach-Lakewood-Signal Hill area are Howard T. Williams, Fred Neuberger, Mrs. Rozelle Sommer, Leonard L. Schiada, H. G. Hanawalt, Mrs. Stephen Horn, Lawrence C. Eisele Jr., Dr. Sutter Kunkel, Joseph Dunning, Mrs. David Eagleson and Capt. M. H. Lytle, USN (Ret.).

L.B. harbor caught in squeeze over fees

The Port of Long Beach, apparently caught in a complicated squeeze occasioned by a denial of increased dockage fees in Los Angeles Harbor, faces a $3 million annual revenue loss, Long Beach Harbor officials were warned Friday.

In addition, the port of Los Angeles could face a $4 million annual loss as the result of action by the Los Angeles city council March 7, according to James McJunkin, assistant general manager of the Long Beach Harbor Department.

On that date the council tabled, by a 10-2 vote, a 33½ per cent permanent dockage and wharfage increase in effect at eight other major ports within the California Association of Port Authorities (CAPA).

The council action reverses a temporary move by the Los Angeles Harbor Commission in January which upped the fees as an emergency measure to conform with those in other California ports. The action expires April 15, at which time Los Angeles port charges will revert to previous rates. A permanent increase requires council approval.

What this all means to Long Beach, McJunkin explained, is that shipping companies will choose the lower rates at Los Angeles Harbor rather than come to Long Beach.

McJunkin explained these matters to the Long Beach Harbor, Industry and Oil Committee during a meeting at the Harbor Department building.

He called the consequences of the Los Angeles council action "chilling" and warned that Long Beach undoubtedly would have to roll back its fees to meet the competition of the lowered Los Angeles Harbor rates.

"Shipping companies have already advised their shippers of the increase and raised their rates accordingly," he said. "During the period Los Angeles maintains its lowered rates the shipping lines will collect and pocket the difference between the two rates," he added.

The rate increase was voted by members of the CAPA in December, 1974, to help defray spiraling costs of port operations

The Los Angeles city council vote occurred after strong protests by foreign auto importers and steamship companies who appeared before the council's Industry and Transportation Committee.

That committee recommended that the council receive and file the permanent rate increase for these reasons:

"It would be inflationary. It would work an undue hardship on the consumer, and the shipping industry has not received sufficient advance notice of the increase."

—However, McJunkin explained, the increase would have little inflationary effect.

"It would mean an increase of $2 on an automobile, a penny on a TV, and $3.30 for the lumber for a $50,000 house," McJunkin said.

He added that the majority of shipping lines are foreign flag operators and they would pocket and take out of the United States the 50 cents per ton difference between the old rate and the new rate.

McJunkin also said the rollback to pre-January, 1975, levels will cost the port of Los Angeles approximately $350,000 a month in lost revenues.

Even if they resubmit their request for the rate increase and get it, the new rate would not become effective until July 1 and thus the port would lose a minimum of $875,000.

McJunkin's analysis prompted a suggestion by Councilwoman Eunice Sato that the Long Beach City Council ask the Los Angeles council to consider rescinding its March 7 action. Her request is expected to come before the City Council Tuesday.

In addition, Harbor Commissioner James Craig Jr. said the rollback could bankrupt the ports of San Francisco, Stockton and Sacramento if they too were forced to return to the old rate as a result of the Los Angeles City Council action.

Long Beach Councilman Russell Rubley said he would like to hear a transcript of the March 7 meeting at which the Los Angeles council tabled the permanent rate increase request.

Gut situation

Clifton Wells' best punch doesn't even faze Bernie Lyons, left, as Alexandra O'Hara wonders what comes next in a scene from the Long Beach Community Players production, "Will Success Spoil Rock Hunter?", by George Axelrod. The comedy play directed by James Brittain is being presented at Community Playhouse, 5021 East Anaheim St., on Fridays and Saturdays at 8:30 p.m. through March 21. Anny Duperey: baffled beauty

Miss Ronstad to appear at Amphitheater

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The most baffled French girl in Paris must be Anny Duperey who spent 10 days in the United States and, except for the view from a jetliner, was confined to sightseeing in hotel lobbies and restaurants.

Anny is a sensational beauty who came to this country in place of Charles Boyer (who took ill) to publicize "Stavisky," a French-language film.

The dark-haired, blue-eyed native of Rouen is 27, tall, slender and sultry.

If one were forced to choose between Anny and Catherine (the most beautiful woman in the world) Deneuve, the newcomer would probably win out.

Even so, she was not at her best. By the time Anny arrived in Hollywood she had spent three days in New York City — seeing Manhattan from her hotel window — and was enroute to one-day stops in Philadelphia and Boston.

Anny was suffering from jet lag, disorientation and the language barrier. She speaks English with the fluency that Buddy Hackett spouts Kurdish.

Yet Anny was anxious to make professional contacts in Hollywood. She has appeared in a dozen French movies. She may work in a dozen more and still be unknown outside her own country. Her chances of becoming an international star through French films are remote.

She must return to Hollywood if she hopes to attain real stardom.

"There are only five movie stars in all of France," she said in a wondrous Gallic accent. "They are all men — Alain Delon, Yves Montand, Belmondo, Piccoli and Louis Defunes."

"Among women there are only Annie Girardot and Romy Schneider. But they are not boxoffice stars. Neither is Deneuve. "As in America, there are no good parts for women in France. So I work on the stage all the time. Actresses in my country who only do films must be desperate. There isn't enough work for them."

"The theater is good for me. It keeps me employed. The stage gives pretty girls an opportunity to prove they can act."

At least it did in Anny's case. She won the coveted Gerard Philippe Award for best theater actress of the year in France three years ago.

"There are only two motion picture studios left in Paris," she said, "and they are not busy like the ones in Hollywood."

"My regret is that I am here for such a short time. I had hoped to meet some actors and get to know directors and producers while I was here. But all I've done is appear on TV to advertise the picture. It's frustrating."

Anny is single and embraces what appears to be the conventional contemporary French woman's attitude toward marriage. "I am opposed to marriage," she said. "But I'm not against having children. I will probably become a mother sometime, probably while I am single."

"Marriage has nothing to do with having children. Love, yes."

"Most of all I want to return to the United States and work in Hollywood films. Otherwise I cannot hope to become a star."

"I feel badly returning to France without seeing some producers," she concluded. "But I will be back."

Linda Ronstadt, currently enjoying renewed popularity in the country rock field, is set to appear at the Universal Studios Amphitheater Aug. 29-31. Miss Ronstadt, whose version of the 1960's hit "You're No Good" is getting good radio play, joins Mac Davis, Tony Orlando & Dawn and Helen Reddy in the growing list of stars signed for the '75 outdoor concert season.

Season tickets and group rate information available by calling the Amphitheater box office.

L.A. Ballet due April 1

The Los Angeles Ballet Company, under the artistic direction of John Clifford, will make its initial appearance at the Huntington Hartford Theatre April 5.

Clifford and his company of 25 artists will dance in six different performances which will number 16 ballets and include six premieres. The week's program will also feature a special Saturday matinee performance, April 5, for children featuring excerpts from "The Nutcracker."

One of the six scheduled premieres, "Sweet Remembrance," music by Mendelssohn, will be choreographed by Kevin Haigen, choreographer and soloist with American Ballet Theatre. Premiering also will be Bournonville's "Flower Festival Pas de Deux," with music by Helsted.

The remaining four premieres are choreographed by Clifford and will include: "Kammermusik," music by Hindemith; "Afternoon of a Faun" by Debussy; "Le Creation du Monde" by Milhaud and "Rococo Variations" by Tchaikovsky.

Giulini leaves Italy, 'accent' behind

By DAVID LEVINSON
Gustav Mahler once complained that Arturo Toscanini conducted Wagner "with an Italian accent."

I confess to having feared that Carlo Maria Giulini, a longtime disciple of Toscanini's, might conduct Mahler with the same accent. My fear was unfounded, as Giulini demonstrated in a performance of the Viennese master's "Symphony No. 9" with the Los Angeles Philharmonic at the Music Center Pavilion Thursday.

In any event, Giulini has left Italy behind for Chicago — where he was the symphony's principal guest conductor until last year — and for Vienna, where he is now music director of the Vienna Symphony.

The Ninth is the Mahler symphony that is most difficult to understand on first hearing. At least it is difficult to understand in the Bruno Walter interpretation that has set the pattern for many of its performances.

Walter conducted the work's first performance in 1912, a year after Mahler's death; he recorded it in his last performance with the Vienna Philharmonic in 1937 before he fled Hitler; and he recorded it again in Los Angeles not long before his death. As the symphony's first and most persistent advocate, Walter shaped for generations the idea of this greatest symphony of the late Romantic movement. That was not entirely to the good. Walter's approach was sentimental and it employed a great many minor alterations of tempo. Walter was a much younger man than Mahler, but he was less of the 20th century than his mentor was.

How much of Walter's interpretation reflected Mahler's desires we do not know, although Mahler and Walter were close friends. But I have a recording of a Mahler piano roll of an excerpt from his fourth symphony, and it is instructive to compare it with Walter's interpretation. Walter is much freer in rhythm, much less exact in tempo than Mahler.

Giulini handled the Ninth with a nice attention to the composer's many precise indications of tempo. If the volume levels were not all observed so precisely, that is perhaps inevitable in a score that is so exact that at one point it requires clarinets to play loudly, bassoons to play very loudly, and cellos to play very softly.

Occasionally, I thought Giulini's brass was on the tender side when it should have snarled. The second movement laendler had less of the requisite peasant quality than Walter provides.

With those minor reservations, the Giulini performance was a knockout. The piece kept moving, it made easy sense, and if it sang more than we expect it to, the singing seemed perfectly Mahlerian.

THE ISLAND AT THE TOP OF THE WORLD — A Disney adventure about arctic explorers in 1907, who find an unknown land inhabited by lost Vikings. With David Hartman. (G)

LENNY — Dustin Hoffman and Valerie Perrin give excellent portrayals in this beautifully photographed (black and white) drama about the painful life of comedian Lenny Bruce. (R)

YOUNG FRANKENSTEIN — Mel Brooks' hilarious spoof of Frankenstein movies. With Gene Wilder, Peter Boyle, Cloris Leachman and Madeline Kahn. (PG)

GODFATHER II — A stunning sequel. Robert De Niro (outstanding) as the Godfather in early 1900s New York, and Al Pacino as the dangerously troubled heir overlord. (R)

THE FRONT PAGE — A funny new production of the Ben Hecht-Charles MacArthur play about cynical Chicago newspapermen in the late 1920s. With Jack Lemmon as an ace reporter, and Walter Matthau, in a fine performance, as his editor. (PG)

CHINATOWN — Private detective Jack Nicholson is ensnared in a shocking relationship between Faye Dunaway and her father, John Huston, in an engrossing drama set in Los Angeles in the 1930s. Directed by Roman Polanski. (R)

THE STRONGEST MAN IN THE WORLD — A Disney comedy about two college students who unwittingly concoct a superstrength formula. With Cesar Romero, Kurt Russell, Joe Flynn, Eve Arden and Phil Silvers. (G)

THE TOWERING INFERNO — A suspenseful drama about a massive blaze that has trapped persons high in a skyscraper. With Steve McQueen, Paul Newman, William Holden and Faye Dunaway. (PG)

FREEBIE AND THE BEAN — A shoot-em-up comedy about two wacky detectives in San Francisco. With James Caan, Alan Arkin and Valerie Harper. (R)

THE LONGEST YARD — Burt Reynolds Portrays an ex-pro quarterback in a fast-paced, gag-filled action drama directed by Robert Aldrich. (R)

Stevens: 'vote as if hiring'

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

Gilbert A. Stevens, Eighth District Long Beach City Council candidate, Thursday urged voters to cast their ballots in Tuesday's primary as if they were employment managers checking an application.

Stevens also submitted ideas on changing city elections and invited voters to a noon Sunday rally in Scherer Park.

He suggested that candidate order on the ballot should be determined by drawing rather than use alphabetical order in the interest of fairness. He also proposed that each district's two primary finalists use only two campaign mailings for the May 13 general election and that the two share the same envelope to reduce postage costs. He thinks also that the qualifications statements sent with sample ballots should be expanded from 200 to 300 words as a limit.

Finally, Stevens said, "The voter should absolutely ignore the current grand jury inquiries since no conclusions have been reached. Appearing as a witness before a grand jury should not be used unfairly against any person."

EDGERTON POLL

Mrs. Ernest Pascoe, a counselor for the public school system and director of her own private school, said a recent survey covering 90 per cent of the Second District showed candidate Wallace Edgerton "having more committed votes than the combined number of votes for all other candidates."

Mrs. Pascoe said the survey was done by more than 100 volunteers although it was not a scientific poll with a formal set of questions for each person interviewed.

She saw it as "no surprise that Wallace Edgerton is far out in front of Bert Bond. Voters are seeking change and are well aware that Mr. Bond is now demanding 18 years in office."

Edgerton's success, she said, is probably due to his extensive background in teaching, business and overall experience "but his primary quality seems to be his wonderful way of being warm and genuine..."

CRUCHLEY LETTER

Councilman E.F. "Ted" Cruchley, candidate for reelection in the Eighth District, released a letter from Lillian Anakin, of Senior Opportunities and Services Inc., noting appreciation for his efforts for senior citizens.

The July, 1974, letter said it was "a red-letter day in the lives of senior citizens in Long Beach when the Department of Senior Affairs was established and funded by the City Council."

The note closed with an expression of "gratitude for your concern for seniors and your initiative in spearheading the establishment" of the department.

GALLMAN ENDORSED

Carl E. "Gene" Gallman, Fifth District Council candidate, has been pledged the full support of Teamsters Local 692, Long Beach.

Jake L. Koenig, secretary-treasurer, wrote, "We feel that you are fully competent and will be an asset not only to organized labor but to the people in general on issues involving city government."

Gallman said, "As a businessman, I'm especially proud of this endorsement."

HILL MEETING

Lee Hill, Seventh District Council candidate, will hold an open house for district residents from 2 to 4 p.m. today in the social hall of Veterans Park, 101 E. 28th St. Hill will attend to meet voters. There will be free entertainment and refreshments.

THIRD DISTRICT

All three candidates in the Third District Council race will attend a candidates' meeting at 10 a.m. today in Brewitt Branch Library, 4036 E. Anaheim St. The public is invited.

CARTWRIGHT CHARGE

Richard B. Cartwright, Fifth District Council candidate, called Thursday for opponent Jo Ann Richards to debate him on his allegations of her "deliberate and calculatedly deceitful tactics."

Mrs. Richards replied, "My schedule is too full to allow rescheduling four days before election day. If Mr. Cartwright and I are the primary finalists I'd be happy to debate with him."

Cartwright said Mrs. Richards is using the same fear tactics she used in the 1970 council recall election, claiming that a planned expansion of Long Beach Airport would dispossess large numbers of citizens in the Fifth District of their homes and neighborhoods "although she knows it to be false."

He said Mrs. Richards bears "indirect responsibility" for the abortive 1970 recall efforts which cost Long Beach taxpayers $101,078.39.

Cartwright charged also that Mrs. Richards is trying to pass herself off as a Democrat to other Democrats whereas she is a registered Republican. He offered to provide a place for the debate if Mrs. Richards would accept the challenge.

SEYMOUR RECEPTION

Guitarist Joel Valdivia will entertain at a public, 4 to 6 p.m. Sunday cocktail reception for Bonnie Seymour, candidate for the Long Beach Unified School District Board of Education in the residence of Dr. Augustus Rose III, 5411 El Parque St., Long Beach.

The Seymour for Schools Committee will host the reception. Donations will be accepted at the door. Further information is available at 596-5194.

Tongue slips, so he quits

SANTA CRUZ (AP) — Santa Cruz County Supervisor Pat Liteky has resigned, saying he committed an "injurious act" in talking to reporters about a controversy over the planning director.

Liteky, who quit late Thursday, said he referred to his statement earlier in the day that supervisors had requested the resignation of the planning official, Walter Monasch.

Brown challenged on penny-pinching

By Doug Willis

FRESNO (AP) — Gov. Brown should be given 90 days to prove that his penny-pinching budget won't hurt Californians, the head of the California Democratic Council said Friday.

CDC President Nate Holden, a black state senator from Los Angeles, also said Brown was invited to attend the liberal Democratic organization's weekend convention in Fresno to explain his programs.

Holden told reporters he has not yet received a reply from Brown.

Bill Stall, Brown's press secretary in Sacramento, said it is almost certain that he (Brown) won't attend the convention.

He said Brown has had a private meeting set for today in Los Angeles for some time, and had told Holden he was "very uncertain" about attending the convention when Holden personally invited him.

Holden said he is concerned about the effect Brown's budget might have on schools and on the poor on welfare. But he said Brown should be given a chance to make his programs work.

"The program that the governor has employed ought to be evaluated in 90 days to determine whether or not it is detrimental to the life and security of the people of the state of California," Holden said.

"I don't know what effect it will have on the educational programs and whether or not they are going to be deteriorating at a rate much greater than we can tolerate," Holden said of the slim, 4.3 per cent budget increase Brown proposed for local schools.

"In terms of the welfare program, when it gets to the point where the people on welfare can no longer afford dog food or cat food, then we have real problems."

"In Los Angeles, they're training a police force to handle riots of people breaking in grocery stores and taking foods, anticipating that this event may likely occur," Holden said.

On other subjects, Holden said he expects CDC's 1,200 convention delegates this weekend to propose drastic economic actions to pull the nation out of its recession.

He criticized Democrats in Congress for compromising with President Ford, saying, "There's no room for compromise. I think we're in this mess because there's been too much compromise in the first place."

He said any program which increases gasoline prices will also force up prices for food, clothing, shelter and other necessities.

Holden predicted CDC also will propose federal control of oil companies and will endorse the Gallo wines boycott by United Farm Workers' leader Cesar Chavez.

OUR CITY...

During the past three years, our City has expended $50,411.45 on improvements of intersections in the 8th district. These include South Street at Lime, Cerritos and Orange, plus the corner of Del Amo — all for the benefit of Long Beach residents. I am proud to have been a part of these efforts to improve our city.

Big basketball blitz

TV-Radio Editor

Most sports fans won't need the reminder, but just in case a few basketball buffs may have failed to turn to the sports pages the last couple of days, let me point out that there'll be a lot of shooting on the tube today.

And I'm not talking about police series or old Western movies.

NBC serves up a triple-header, starting at 9 this morning, as the national collegiate basketball championship tournament gets under way.

You can watch Indiana play Texas El Paso at 9 a.m., Kentucky take on Marquette at 11 a.m. and Arizona State face Alabama at 1 p.m., all on Channel 4.

And Channel 5 will present the big game for most West Coast fans at 9 tonight, with UCLA's Bruins taking on Michigan.

If that's not enough basketball for you, Channel 5 also will air the Montana-Utah State game at 1 a.m., on a tape-delayed basis.

TOP QUALITY specials usually don't do well in the television ratings, so it was no great surprise to me to learn that "Love Among the Ruins" was No. 55 among prime-time shows in the national Nielsen ratings for the week of March 3 to 9.

In fact, I offered to bet my wife that "Twigs," starring Carol Burnett, would attract more viewers than the Katharine Hepburn-Laurence Olivier comedy-drama. They were in direct competition for the first 90 minutes that "Ruins" aired.

It's too bad for me that my offer wasn't taken up, for "Twigs" finished in a tie for 18th place in the Nielsen with a 22.9 rating. "Ruins" had a 13.8 rating.

Even NBC's "Archer," whose cancellation already had been announced, and "Movin' On" beat "Ruins" in direct confrontations. "Movin' On" was No. 30 and "Archer" No. 33 in the week's Nielsens.

Barbra Streisand, who is considered the biggest female draw in movies, was no blockbuster on TV. Her Sunday special on ABC, "Funny Girl to Funny Lady," was a ratings flop at No. 52.

In the same time period, Barbra was badly beaten by CBS' "Cher," which finished 16th, and NBC's "Wonderful World of Disney," tied for 18th. NBC's two new Thursday night series, "Sunshine" and "The Bob Crane Show," got off to poor starts, the former finishing 48th with a 15 rating and 24 per cent audience share and the Crane show 51st with a 14.7 rating and 23 share.

TONIGHT'S prime-time network movies — "The Organization" on Channel 7 and "The Omega Man" on Channel 4 — are both 1971 theatrical films that have aired earlier on the tube.

"The Omega Man" is a weird science-fiction tale that I would rate among the worst films of recent years. Charlton Heston plays a scientist who is pursued by plague-stricken, murderous mutants after a nuclear holocaust.

In "The Organization," Sidney Poitier repeats his "In the Heat of the Night"

Cerritos, Harbor vie for JC title

By PAUL McLEOD
Staff Writer

FRESNO—After Cerritos College's shocking 47-45 upset of top-rated Compton in the early game of the California Junior and Community College playoffs, only one more element of drama remained before the state title would return to the Long Beach area.

title tussle terminated with one shot. A Long Beach City College stall in the final three minutes backfired and Harbor College nipped the Vikings 68-67. Harbor will meet Cerritos tonight at 9 to determine the state champion in Fresno's Seland Arena.

day's action, sat glued to their seats as Harbor's Gilbert Hicks hit a winning jumper with seven seconds remaining. Ironically, two hours earlier spectators saw the same chain of events unfold as Cerritos playmaker Anthony Hernandez sent Compton home with a 20-foot basket at the buzzer.

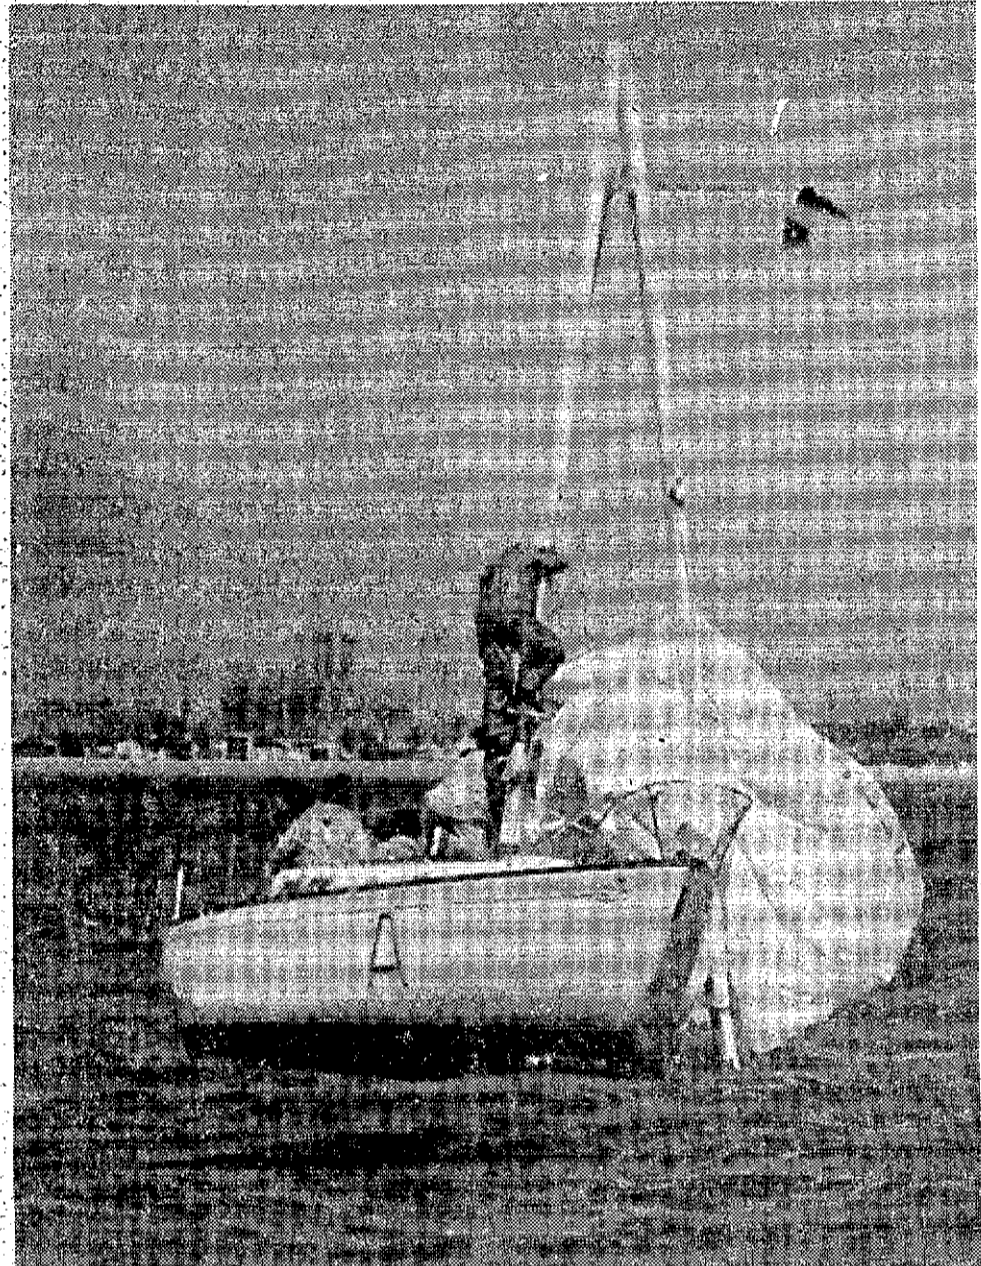

but was eliminated. Had the Vikings beaten Harbor they would have faced the Falcons for the second time in the history of the playoffs. Long Beach won the title in 1971 with a 57-54 squeaker over Cerritos. The Vikings finished the season with a 22-10 mark. Cerritos is 17-13. Long Beach led by as many as seven points during the closing minutes. But Harbor battled to within one when Danny Marques slipped and lost the ball as he brought it up court and Harbor's Ivory Tackwood recovered and hit a layin. Steve Sincok headed the Long Beach dribbling exhibition in the final 1:41. He was fouled by Dennis Johnson with 44 seconds remaining but missed a one-and-one and Harbor controlled the ball.

played tidy offense as well, committing only eight turnovers. Cerritos blew a half-dozen opportunities to tie the score in the final six minutes. With 3:25 remaining Hernandez went to work. His long fall-away jumper knotted the score at 45. Seconds later Gray was at the free throw line with a chance to put the Tartars up by two but he missed the first of a one-and-one and Howard controlled. With 1:48 to play the Falcons worked the clock down to 15 seconds, then called time out and set the play. Hernandez took the in-bound pass, fed Guderian who faked toward Howard, then returned the ball to Hernandez. With three seconds showing on the clock the sophomore guard drove toward Williams, stopped and pumped a 20-foot jumper that settled into the basket at the buzzer. "I can't talk right now," puffed ecstatic coach Bob Foerster as his players mobbed him in the locker room. Cerritos has won 13 of its last 15 games after entering South Coast Conference play with a 5-11 pre-season mark.

Too much wind

Flying Cloud, skippered by veteran Ted Hood, suffered a broken mast Friday in Congressional Cup competition off Long Beach. Wind, accelerating to 25 knots, forced postponement of race until this morning.

Strong, gusty winds scrubbed the second day's races of the 11th Congressional Cup sailing series Friday. When competition resumes today, 11:30 a.m., Dennis Conner (San Diego Yacht Club) and Tony Parker (Annapolis YC) will continue to share the lead at four victories. The winds played havoc with the Cal-40 boats Friday, damaging two of the 10. Ted Hood's Flying Cloud was dismantled. Winds were blowing from 15 to 20 knots, with gusts much higher. A stripped turnbuckle caused a line to let loose and put the tension on one side of the mast. It bent in half about one-third of the way from the deck to the top.

caused a complete scrub and markers were being reset when another shift came. The wind changed from 210 degrees to 320 degrees within less than two hours. It was building up gigantic swells and an angry sea.

Zamora decks Hong in 4th

Mexico's 20-year-old Alfonso Zamora knocked out Soo Hwan Hong of South Korea with a flurry of fourth-round punches capped by a left hook to capture the World Boxing Association bantamweight crown Friday night at the Forum. Zamora, of Mexico City, controlled the fight to become the youngest ever to hold the 118-pound title. Zamora caught Hong on the ropes late in the fourth round and hammered home a series of rights and lefts to the body and the head that sent the Korean down for referee George Latka's full count and at least two minutes longer. The fight ended in 2:37. Hong lay flat on his back as Dr. Jack Useem examined him, but finally climbed to his feet and made his way to his corner. Zamora, an even choice at ring time, ran his knockout record to 21 in as many professional fights and sent Hong down for the first time in his pro career. A crowd of 13,380 paid $131,633 with Hong collecting $50,000 and the winner $10,000. Zamora, following the fight, said his knockout was the "hardest fight I ever had." Later in the jubilant dressing room he changed that a bit saying, "It was an easy fight but it was a tough fight. Something in between." Zamora showed more of the effects of the brief but bitter struggle. The right side of his face was bruised and red from the sharp shooting Korean's left hook. In other matches Carlos Zarate, 117, Mexico City, scored a third round knockout over Joe Guevara, 119, Sacramento and Javier Muniz, 137, Los Angeles, won a unanimous 10 round decision over Vicente Hernandez, 138, of Sonora, Mexico.

Race committee chairman Downie Muir III announced late Friday that a new Cal-40 out of the yacht pool would be supplied to Hood today. Meanwhile, Flam was repairing the spreader on Celebrity. Race officials are hoping the wind will behave enough today so that three series may be run. That would make a total of seven, four the first day, and it might be possible to determine a winner from a seven-series race instead of the usual nine. Skippers have been advised to meet this morning and prepare for an early start on the six-mile course off the Long Beach breakwater.

Verbum Dei CIF title reign is over

By FRANK BURLISON

Verbum Dei was well on its way to its seventh CIF championship in a row, when a strange thing happened.

It lost. Palos Verdes snapped the Eagles' 33-game playoff win streak Friday night at the L.A. Sports Arena, 61-58.

The loss, before a crowd of 6,698, put an end to Verbum Dei's hope for a 4-A title that more or less was conceded to it. The Sea Kings will face Marina, a 61-60 winner over Inglewood, in the other semifinal game tonight at 9 p.m.

Palos Verdes led most of the game, mainly behind the outstanding play of Bill Laimbeer, the all-America center who outplayed his counterpart, David Greenwood.

The Sea Kings led by two at halftime and increased the margin to six entering the final quarter, 41-35.

Forward David Felberg was the Palos Verdes hero in the clutch. Felberg sank 10 points in the final quarter to help the Sea Kings hold several late Verbum Dei rallies.

Palos Verdes led, 58-56, when Greenwood fouled out trying to steal the ball from Tom Spillane and the Sea King guard sank one of the free throws with 22 seconds remaining.

The Eagles missed a shot and Laimbeer grabbed the ball, fired a length-of-the-court pass to Felberg, who sank the basket with 11 seconds showing the clock and gave the winners a five-point lead.

Laimbeer finished the game with 24 points, hitting 10-of-20 shots from the field and grabbed 13 rebounds. Guard Roy Hamilton led the Eagles with 23 points. Greenwood was held to 10 but had 10 rebounds and seven blocked shots.

Marina earned its spot when Matt Cook drove through the Inglewood defense to sink a layup with 14 seconds remaining.

Cook was fouled by Inglewood's Reggie Theus on the play and sank the free throw ahead, 61-58.

Marina had taken a two-point lead entering the fourth period but the Theus-led Sentinels pulled in front of the Vikings 56-49 with 3:15 remaining.

Marina, capitalizing on some sloppy ball-handling by Inglewood, sank eight consecutive free throws to move in front, 57-56 with 1:45 remaining.

Hall, Hunsaker leading rodeo bronc-busters

By GARY RAUSCH
Staff Writer

Lonnie Hall and Bo Hunsaker made the most of the toughest stock in competition Friday evening to take early leads in the Long Beach Indoor Rodeo.

A Long Beach Arena crowd of 4,974 saw Hall and Cheyenne, the leading bareback bronc on the program, post a 71-point effort.

The Spearfish, S.D., rider was one of only six bareback entries to post points in the first of three sessions. Competition continues tonight at 8 with a 3 o'clock Sunday matinee.

Hunsaker hung on for dear life through an eight-second kidney-thrasher aboard top-rated Joaquín and registered 70 points. Barely edged out by the Rock Springs, Wyo., cowboy were Mel Hyland (Red Top), Doug Brown (Laramie) 69, Larry Mahan (Old Yeller) 68, Mel Hyland (Red Top) 69.

Calif. roping: Cleo Hern 11.6 seconds, Roy Durfee 11.3, Kent Youngblood 21.2.

Barrel racing: Richard Candy (Hillbillies) 18, Doug Brown (Papa Pete) 57, Randy Mayers (Hooker) 65.

Girls' barrel race: Becky Carson 14.5 seconds.

Mahan, looking to increase his all-around lead with another victory in Long Beach this weekend, suffered a setback when he was tossed by Tuffy in the night's concluding event, bull riding.

2 records fall in NCAA track

DETROIT (UPI)—Three individual victories — including a pair of NCAA indoor records — carried Texas-El Paso to a commanding first-night lead in the NCAA Indoor Track and Field Championships Friday night.

Sophomore Arnold Grimes hopped, skipped and jumped his way into the record books by triple jumping 55 feet, 4 inches and smashing the previous NCAA hothouse standard of 54-6 1/2 set by Tommy Haynes last year. Teammate Hans Ho-gland pushed the shot an NCAA indoor record distance of 67-9/16 to break his own mark of 67-1/4 and win his third consecutive title. Peter Farmer notched the other UTEP win, tossing the 35-pound weight 68 feet, 11 1/2 inches.

TRIPLE JUMP—Grimes (UTEP) 55-4 (NCAA record, old mark 54-6 1/2 by Haynes, '74); Houlund (UTEP) 67-9/16 (NCAA record, old mark 67-7/16 by Houlund, '74); LeDuc (Texas) 64-4; 35-POUND WEIGHT TOSS—Farmer (UTEP) 68-11 1/2, Olerial (Northwestern) 68-2 1/2; LONG JUMP—Theo Hamilton (Kansas) 24-1 1/2, Seay (Kansas) 25-7; 800—Mark Envorci (Utah St.) 1:52.4; Orlando Green (Seton Hall) 1:52.4; 2-MILE—Mike Rose (W. MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI)—Stu Lantz sank two free throws with 14 seconds remaining Friday night to give the Lakers a 105-104 win over the Milwaukee Bucks.

The Bucks, by losing, missed a chance to move ahead of Detroit and into third place in the Midwest Division.

Milwaukee began the fourth quarter trailing 85-79 and took the lead for the first time at 102-101 with 45 seconds remaining.

But Gale Goodrich made two free throws with 35 seconds remaining to give the Lakers a one-point lead. Jon McGlocklin missed a jump shot from the corner and Corky Calhoun got the rebound. McGlocklin then fouled Lantz, who went to the free throw line for his two decisive free throws.

Goodrich had 30 points to lead the Lakers and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar led the Bucks with 29.

Wilson, Jordan tie

Jordan and Wilson High switched game sites Friday, but were frustrated in an attempt to get in their Moore League baseball game.

The Panthers battled to a 2-2 tie, called after 10 innings because of darkness at Wilson. The game had been scheduled for Houghton Park, but the field was too damp to play on.

Millikan lost a wild card to Compton, 9-8, in 8 innings.

Gahr halts Glenn on one hit, 3-0

By Dennis Brosterhous
Junior hurler Steve Swartz pitched his second one-hitter of the year to lead Gahr High to a 3-0 win over Glenn in the Suburban League opener Friday.
Swartz, who earlier allowed one hit against Lynwood, struck out five and walked one. The only Glenn hit was by Larry Savedra with two outs and nobody on in the top of the fourth inning.
The Gladiators scored three times in the first for the win.
With one out, catcher Mike French walked and Noble Smith reached first on a fielder's choice which advanced French to second.
The first run came across on a single by Nick Perri. An attempted squeeze play by Swartz turned into an RBI single to make it 2-0.
Then, as Swartz was drawing a throw on a steal of second, French came home with the final run of the game.
Fred Musquiz pitched well for Glenn allowing only two hits after the first

Lynwood hurler fires no-hitter

Ken Szamocki rounded into midseason form Friday, firing a no-hitter as Lynwood, which completed its non-league season, whipped Culver City, 3-0.
Szamocki struck out 13 and yielded two walks, one in the first inning and one in the sixth.
Lynwood scored two runs in the second inning for the win. Randy Mullins walked and was singled to third by Mike Sanchez. Joe Storey drove home Mullins with a sacrifice fly and Keith Lewis singled home Sanchez.
The win ran Lynwood's mark to 6-2.
Walt Hammang doubled home a run in the 10th inning to lead La Mirada over Costa Mesa, 5-3.
La Mirada scored three times in the seventh inning to send the game into extra innings. Winning pitcher Terry Watkins smashed a two-run homer in the seventh.
Mike Dyer fanned six and yielded four hits and Mike Wiekamp crashed a three-run homer in the seventh inning to lead Bellflower past Pioneer, 5-1.
Santa Fe scored two unearned runs in the sixth inning to top Excelsior, 4-2.

Wolves at UCLA's door Hoosier hotshots begin title bid

Associated Press
When Indiana look over as the No. 1 college basketball team in the nation midway through the season, coach Bobby Knight said the only thing that really counted was being No. 1 after the playoffs.
That countdown begins today in Lexington, Ky., when the unbeaten Hoosiers meet Texas-El Paso in a nationally televised game, the first of the NCAA playoffs that pit 32 teams in 16 games at 8 sites in 4 regions.
There are a lot of hotshots between the Hoosiers and the top of the National Collegiate Athletic Association title game in San Diego March 31, including perennial powerhouse UCLA, ranked No. 2; Maryland's tenacious Terps, ranked fourth, and Marquette and Kentucky, fifth and sixth.
Skeptics thought the Hoosiers' demise was imminent when Scott May, honored Friday as an all-America, was sidelined late in the season with a broken arm. But the team that has no superstars proved it could prevail with depth and takes a 29-0 record against Texas-El Paso. May will suit up and may play.

The Bruins and coach John Wooden, seeking their 10th NCAA crown in 12 years, probably will be without the complete services of all-America David Meyers.
Meyers, a 6-foot-8 defensive wizard who developed a scoring touch (18.3 points per game) this season, suffered a severe charley horse three weeks ago and bruised a knee in last week's win over USC.
Wooden has held Meyers out of contact drills all week, including a rugged scrimmage Thursday, in hopes that the Bruin leader will be able to contribute today.
The luck of the draw will eliminate one top gun early since Kentucky and Marquette meet in the first round. The Wildcats, relieving the Adolph Rupp

Long Beach State will be in the run San Jose tracks UCLA victory streak today

By JOHN DIXON
Staff Writer
The feature race will be the point race when UCLA, San Jose and Long Beach State tangle on the Westwood track today, 1:15 p.m.
The meet will be scored double dual and triangular.
UCLA has won 28 successive duals, and has lost only once in five years. But San Jose has its strongest team in history, and two Bruin high-scoringers are academically ineligible until April. UCLA will be running scared.
"San Jose appears capable of ending our win streak," UCLA boss Jim Bush calculated. "It's had one goal posted on its bulletin board since October—'BEAT UCLA'."
"We'll probably lose the meet," Bush said, "because I apparently agreed in a weak moment to hold a steeplechase. We don't have anyone ready, and I'm not going to ask anyone to volunteer."
Gordon Innes probably will be assigned to volunteer. He established a school record of 8:38.8 and finished fourth in the national championships last year.
He'll get a push from Jim Sweeney of Long Beach, who recently trimmed his school record by 11 seconds to 8:59.6.

"UCLA will have to double its middle-distance runners to win," predicted Long Beach coach Ron Alice. "Even then they'll be in tough, because Mark Schilling of San Jose (1:49, 3:58) is capable of running two fast back-to-back races."
"My staff thinks San Jose will win, but I'll take UCLA."
The pole vault probably will be the "high" event.
It matches Don Baird (17-9) of Long Beach, Dan Ripley (18-1 indoors) of San Jose, and Mike Tully (17-5), Ron Mooers (17-1)

USC at Arizona St.
USC's track team, which hasn't lost a dual meet to any team except UCLA in 10 years, meets Arizona State at Tempe, 7:30 tonight. USC is 16-0 against Arizona State, but it's a pick 'em meet tonight.
Baird, a freshman, is No. 2 collegian this season, while Tully, freshman from Millikan High, is No. 3. "Tully," says Bush, "is going to be one of the great ones."
Long Beach State does not have the depth to win team honors, but Alice expects the 49ers to be competitive — and to win a few first prizes.
Best bets are quarter-miler Albert Shorts, spear thrower Keith Goldie, vaulter Baird, steeple-chaser Sweeney, and high hurdlers Dan Jones, James Royal and Milt Turner.

DRAGS RACE AT MARINE STADIUM

Drag boat racing stages its 1975 Southern California premiere today at 10 a.m. with the California Championships at Long Beach's Marine Stadium.

Mr. Ed, the world's fastest drag boat, will be manned by a new driver, Frank Dade, and is expected to face a number of serious challenges to its record of 202.46 mph. Owner Ed Wills says he expects the mark to fall this season — perhaps today.

Also on hand will be War Eagle with driver Bob Dice and owner Larry Onstott. They established an NDBA record for unblown fuel flatbottoms of 144.23 mph and this year will try their luck with unblown fuel hydros using a boat also dubbed War Eagle.

A record-smashing day would be nothing new to Marine Stadium. Of the 10 NDBA classification records, six have been established at Long Beach as well as two of the four world water skiing marks.

Fillies compete at Santa Anita

William Haggin Perry's Sarsar and Mr. and Mrs. Douglass Carver's Oak Leaf Stakes heroine Cut Class will duel for the first time today in the $56,600 Santa Susana Stakes at Santa Anita.

Ten leading 3-year-old fillies will go to the post in the mile and one-sixteenth test, with all-time winning jockey Bill Shoemaker to ride Sarsar and Fernando Toro to pilot Cut Class.

In two appearances at the meeting, Sarsar has scored impressive stakes triumphs. She won the La Centinela Stakes by 6 1/2 lengths Jan. 8 and captured the six-furlong Pasadena Stakes by 11 lengths Feb. 12.

Attes a pair of one-mile allowance races—a first and a second—here under her belt, Cut Class will be making her 3-year-old Santa Anita stakes debut. Trainer Joe Dunn bypassed the sprint stakes in the filly division to prepare the Arts and Letters offspring for the Santa Susana.

Trainer Tommy Doyle will send Fascinating Girl and Miss Francesca post-ward. In their last time out, Fascinating Girl and Miss Francesca finished second and third, respectively, at the Santa Susana distance in the Santa Ysabel Stakes March 5.

Also entered are Swamp Nurse, Ms. Bold One, Double You Lou, Nicosia, Fleet Courage and Sweet Old Girl.

Friday, Bold Clarion outran Go Conquer in the final 16th to take the feature.

In winning his first race of 1975, Bold Clarion reached the winner's circle for the first time since last September when he captured the Sacramento Derby. Bold Clarion returned $5 as the 3-2 favorite.

Pace standouts at Alamitos

World champion gelding Armbronto Ontario will make his first appearance of the 1975 Southern California Racing Association season tonight at Los Alamitos Race Course.

Armbronto Ontario is one of six outstanding pacers that will be competing for first place in the $10,000 Silkwood Pace. The race is named after Silkwood, Orange County's champion pacer of the 1890s.

Early odds give track recordholder Windy Way at least an equal chance of winning the Silkwood.

Regardless, a two-minute mile appears likely if the track is fast.

Windy Way has covered the Alamitos mile in 1:57 4/5 (in 1973) while Armbronto has a best time of 1:56 1/4, logged in Lexington's Red Mile.

Also entered are Had My Way, Rin Tim Tim, Combat Zone and Thomas Butler.

Rin Tim Tim is making his third start of the season and will be seeking to pad a wallet that already holds $123,000.

Rin Tim Tim was second in the Santa Monica in his previous Los Alamitos starts.

Windy Way finished third in the Sir Dalrae and was a fast-closing second in the Santa Monica in its two previous starts. Bobby Williams will drive Windy Way, winner of more than $315,000 in its career.

Track recordholder Magic Air trotted to the fastest time of the current season Friday night when he won the co-featured fifth race.

Magic Air, who set the track standard here last year when he trotted to a 2:02 triumph, took over the lead shortly after the half-mile pole and never looked back, clocking the mile in 2:02 1/5.

The seven-year-old son of Ayres was racing for an $8,000 claiming price when he set the record in 1973, but his victory in the $7,500 trot Friday night increased his lifetime earnings to nearly $82,000.

Driven by Jim Crane, Magic Air, who logged a 1:59 mile last fall at Hollywood Park, returned $11.20 for the victory.

YOUR HOROSCOPE
by JEANE DIXON
Forecast for Sunday

Your birthday today: The role of peacemaker or go-between is the task most often assigned to you in this year of numerous swiftly passing opportunities. You must rely largely on your own resources and should become more positive and independent in your decisions. Relationships thrive almost automatically. Today's natives have special talents for dealing with people of different viewpoints or foreign origins.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Put business or personal problems out of mind. Family and friends are in the mood to explore interesting places, taste unaccustomed food and pick up trinkets and novelties.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): On the spur of the moment, something is done that changes the situation. Emotional concern runs strong, carries people along. You stand to benefit from today's incidents.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Endless rounds of discussion are probable and desirable. Tensions disappear when every side of the issue is seen and judged. Spiritual values count now in your decisions.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): The personal touch makes the difference. Let bygones be bygones; begin wherever you are. Try to see everything as if it were all new and still had to be done painstakingly.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): It serves a purpose to display a bit of dignity as you fulfill your normal share of weekend formalities. This is a time for sentiment and gently reassuring your loved ones.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Peace of mind is promised during this slow-paced Sunday. Almost everybody seems only too eager to agree with you. Take care of the many small chores you have.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Settle outstanding obligations or at least agree on what they amount to and what you expect to do about them. Enjoy hobbies or sports. Celebrate tonight.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Gather associates for a good time, but leave shop talk out of it. It's a great day for tall stories and practical jokes; just don't let them get to you.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Take a long look at your past. Then move ahead in the current situation with the applicable knowledge you've been able to acquire.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Everybody has a story to tell, including one you can learn from without repeating the experience yourself. Keep indulgence at an austere level; give your system a rest.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): In this Sunday's discussions, family skeletons pop out of every closet. You can catch up on the news by thoughtfully listening.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Renew neglected contacts. Hopes and dreams are closer to reality. A search for scattered or misplaced possessions turns up something else you hadn't thought about lately.
